QUESTIONS STATE
DRY BUREAU MAN
PAID BY W. C. T. U.

Wood Calls W. B. Wright, in Charge of Pennsylvania Dry Enforcement at $8000 Salary a Year.

"UNDER COVER"
AIDS NOT NAMED

Senator Condemns "Under Cover" Government —
Calls Secret Sleuths
Messrs. X, Y, Z and Zero.

By CHARLES G. ROSS
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—The Reed campaign fund investigating committee of the Senate inquired closely today into the administration of the $131,000 fund raised by the W. C. T. U. of Pennsylvania and turned over to Gov. Pinchot for prohibition enforcement work.

The witness of the morning was Mr. William B. Wright, one of the trustees of the fund, who receives out of it a salary of $8,000 a year
as special counsel to the Governor.

Wright got his military title during the World War, when, as an officer of the sanitary corps, he had charge of anti-vice work among soldiers in the New England area. He was a resident of Buffalo when Gov. Pinchot, an old friend of his, called him to Pennsylvania to assist in dry law enforcement. He was paid first out of State funds and then out of the fund collected by the W. C. T. U.

After the State Legislature had failed to give Pinchot the money he requested for enforcement of the State prohibition code.

"Investigators" on Staff.
Reed required the witness to tell about the staff of the special bureau set up in the State Capital at Harrisburg to spend the W. C. T. U. money. All told, this bureau has had at different times about 12 employees whose titles were described as "investigators."

Wright named several of them
and their salaries and duties.
First of them, however, he did not give a name, saying that they were
"undercover" men whose usefulness
would be impaired if their connection with the law enforcement work should become known. He said that he was willing to tell their names in a private session of the committee.

"This committee," said Reed seriously, "doesn't believe in 'under cover' government."

He said that the committee would pass later on the request of the witness for suppression of the names.

"Messrs. X, Y, Z and Zero."
As Wright came to the names of the "undercover" men in the list of investigators, Senator Reed
laughed, for the record, as Mr.
X, Mr. Y and Mr. Z. He hesitated for a moment at the fourth, then said Mr. Zero. The Senator expressed the utmost gravity throughout this display.

Wright said that he started at a salary of $6000 a year and expenses and was advanced the first of this year to $8000 plus traveling expenses. He had with him for a while in 1923 an assistant, John N.
Raglin, who was paid at the rate of $6000 a year, out of the W. C.
T. U. fund, for helping in the preparation of court cases.

Later he took on a man who came from the Department of Justice at Washington. He got $185
a month, also out of the W. C. T.
U. fund. Another lawyer was employed for a part of 1924 at $300
a month, and the next year Wright had a legal helper at $250 a month.

Not Commissioned by State.
Reed developed the point that with two exceptions the men thus charged with the administration work of the State "practically" were not commissioned by the State Government.
He himself, he said,
had received no commission from the Governor.

Reed asked if it was true, as had been reported to the committee, that Gov. Pinchot required State appointments to sign a pledge to be sworn to.

Mass for the Public.

After the dedicatory ceremonies
the public will be admitted to the mass, to be celebrated by Cardinal Bonzano. The sermon will be delivered by Cardinal Hayes.

Probably the most picturesque ceremony of the celebration will be the solemn procession of the Blessed Sacrament tomorrow evening. Beginning at the Archbishop's residence at 7:45 o'clock, it will proceed to the Cathedral.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, June 28.—A world's record for nonstop flight in an airplane is claimed for Capt. Ludovic Arrachart.

With his brother Paul he started
from Le Bourget flying field, near Paris, Saturday, flying by way of Strasbourg and Constantinople toward the Persian Gulf. They received a cable message stating that the aviators had landed at Basra, on the Persian Gulf, after 26 1/2 hours of flight, covering a distance of 4000 kilometers (about 2484 miles).

Capt. Arrachart used a 550-horsepower motor. His plane carried three and one-half tons of gasoline, which was estimated to be sufficient to drive the machine 3000 miles.

WOMEN CROWD COURTROOM
AT DURKIN MURDER TRIAL

Hear Owner of Garage in Which
U. S. Agent Shanahan Was Killed,
Identify Him as Slayer.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
CHICAGO, June 28.—A huge crowd, composed largely of women, got its first thrill of the day at the trial of Martin Durkin today when A. W. Porter identified Durkin as the slayer of E. C. Shanahan, Government agent. Porter owns the garage in which Shanahan was killed.

Betty Werner, Durkin's scorned
sweetheart, was in court.
The testimony of Porter and his brother Lee, the State expects to prove that Durkin knew Shanahan was an officer when he shot him and thus explode his plea that he shot in self defense, thinking
Shanahan was a robber.

Part of quantity of alcohol,
smuggled in to county jail prisoners
several weeks ago, is understood to have reached the cell occupied by Durkin, Capt. George Wedding, jail superintendent, told Judge Miller today. Wedding said the responsible men had been dismissed.

GANGSTER FREED AFTER 18 MONTHS OF 10-YEAR TERM

Arrest of Gus Webbe, 21,
as Suspect in Recent Robbery, Discloses Parole
From Boonville.

HE ADMITTED PART IN TWO MURDERS

Was Sent to Prison Under Two Sentences, but Sidener Urged Transfer to Reform School.

The arrest last night of Gus
Webbe, 21 years old, a Cuckoo gangster, on suspicion of complicity in the beating and robbing
of some tourists near Collinsville,
last Thursday, disclosed that Web-
be has been paroled from Boonville Reformatory after serving only 18 months of a 10-year prison sentence for a part in the murder of Policeman William E. Griffin,
June 10, 1923, in Telegraph Inn, St.
Louis County, and the murder the same night of John Sargent, who drove the machine in which Grif-

Webbe was arrested at his home,
1119 South Tenth street.
The men beaten and robbed on Collinsville road were Wayne and Roscoe Deahl of Lincoln, Neb., who were accompanied by their wives and the 6-year-old daughter of the Rescue Deahls. They say they met Webbe in East St. Louis and asked him where they could get some alcohol. He took them to Michael Jones and the two accompanied the party to a point on the Maryville road near Collinsville, where the robbery took place.
The women were robbed of $354.

Jones was arrested in an East St. Louis saloon and the money was found in his possession. He is locked up at Edwardsville.

After Webbe had been given a 10-year sentence in St. Louis County and a 10-year sentence in St.
Louis, to be served concurrently, he was transferred to the Boonville Reformatory on the plea of Circuit Attorney Sidener and Prosecutor Henry Jones of St. Louis County.
Sidener said the youth of the prisoner
and said "he was the least guilty
of all connected with the case."

Clarence Daniels, Ollie Hamilton
and Leo Cronin, Cuckoo gangsters, never given life terms for the murder,
Webbe pleaded guilty in both cases.

Wayne Deahl says that Jones threatened to kill him and his brother, but Webbe begged him not to, saying he had been through that once and did not want it again.

OKLAHOMA GOVERNOR BARRED

State Supreme Court Rules Trapp
Is Ineligible to Succeed Himself, if Elected.

By the Associated Press.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., June 28.—The State Supreme Court held today that M. E. Trapp, who has acted as governor of Oklahoma
since the impeachment of J. C.
Walton in 1923, is ineligible to hold the office if he were nominated by the Democratic party and elected next fall. The vote was 7 to 2.

Teh court ruled that Trapp has been governor in fact since he succeeded William H. Zwick of the constitutional prohibition against ceeding himself applies to Trapp,

who was elected Lieutenant-Governor in 1922. The decision granted injunctions against the State Election Board and the State Board of Public Affairs, restraining them from placing Trapp's name on the August primary ballot as a gubernatorial candidate.

The decision reversed the ruling of Judge William H. Zwick of the Oklahoma County District Court, which held that Trapp was eligible.

WILLIAMS' PARTY REGULARITY MADE ISSUE BY PROCTOR

Senator Indirectly Accused of Having Given "Aid to Enemy" by His Dry Opponent.

VIRTUALLY CHARGED
HE VOTED FOR REED

St. Louisan Declines to Reply to Any of the Allegations Before Returning to Washington.

The party regularity of United States Senator Williams, candidate for re-nomination, became an issue in the Missouri Senatorial primary today. One of his opponents, former State Senator David M. Proctor, of Kansas City, raised the question in a brief comment on the Senator's campaign opening speech at California, Mo., Saturday.

Not directly accusing Senator Williams of having given "aid and comfort to the enemy," but making the accusation as nearly direct as indirect statement could, he asserted that Williams was responsible for the defeat of the Republican State Senatorial redistricting plan in the Constitutional Convention in 1923, and that he voted for and supported Senator Reed, Democrat, against R. R. Brewster, Republican in 1922.

Senator Williams, after hearing Proctor's statement, refused to reply to either accusation.

"Mr. Meador, my secretary, who was a member of the Constitutional Convention, can answer the first, and Mr. Brewster can answer the second," he said.

In reply to another statement that "if he (Williams) would condescend to meet and mingle with the square-toed voters of the State, he would learn that an overwhelming majority of them are permanently dry," the Senator said, "They can answer that."

Test of Proctor's Statement.

Proctor, when in St. Louis for a few hours Sunday, issued his statement, which follows:

"Senator Williams in his speech in California, Mo., Saturday, referred to other Republican candidates as not knowing the meaning of Republican primaries."

"I repeat such personal attacks, while not possessing omniscience concerning any subject, I lay modest claim to reasonably comprehensive information in respect to the origin, theory and practice of Republican primaries."

"I know that I had been a member of the Missouri Constitutional Convention in 1922-23 and had fought the Republicans of that body and voted and worked with Democrats to defeat a fair senatorial redistricting plan. I am not now seeking, through a Republican primary, to be the standard-bearer of the Republican party."

"I further know that had either my leading supporters or I bolted the Republican ticket in 1922, headed by R. R. Brewster, and voted for Senator James A. Reed and contributed to his campaign fund, I would not now have the temerity of aspiring through a Republican primary to lead the Republicans in the campaign this year."

Shipbuilder and Bride.

VISCOUNTESS FURNESS.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 28.—Viscount Furness, wealthy ship builder, and his 22-year-old American bride, the former Mrs. Thelma Morgan Converse of New York, are on their honeymoon today. They were married yesterday.

Lady Furness is the daughter of Harry Hayes Morgan, American Consul-General at Buenos Aires, and a twin sister of Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt of New York. Another sister is Mrs. Benjamin Thaw Jr. of Pittsburgh.

Viscount Furness is 43 years old and chairman of Furness, Withy & Co. Ltd., ship owners. He has interests in various industrial concerns. His first wife died in 1921.

The bride obtained a divorce in April, 1925, at Los Angeles, from James V. Converse, of New York, a grandson of the late Theodore A. Vail, telephone magnate. They were married in Washington in 1922.

Bride Once a Movie Actress.

Mrs. Converse appeared in the movies when estranged from her husband and started her own producing company. A year or so ago Richard Bennett, actor, considered himself engaged to her but she denied it.

The bride's mother and her sister, Mrs. Vanderbilt, Lord Furness' son, the Hon. Christopher Furness, and Lady Sarah Wilson, who was captured by the Boers during the South African War, were among those who witnessed the ceremony, yesterday.

Society was uncertain today of the details. There was even doubt as to where the marriage had been performed. Several newspapers said it occurred at St. Georges, Hanover Square, while others did not attempt to locate the place. One newspaper said the ceremony was performed in "a church," while the Daily Mail and the Graphic asserted that it occurred at the Registrar's Office, which ordinarily is closed on Sunday.

One Account of Wedding.

One account is that the office was closed for the occasion. An official knocking the door at 10 a. m. a few minutes later, Viscount Furness alighted from a taxicab 100 yards away and walked to the office. Meantime, the cab went to meet a motor car which was bringing Mrs. Converse, who arrived wearing a walking costume.

The best man was a physician, a friend of Viscount Furness. After the wedding Viscount and Lady Furness entered the taxicab and drove to the Furness town house, but left shortly afterwards for the Furness country residence in Leicestershire.

All the other accounts say that Mrs. Converse wore a pink dress and pink hat, while the mother and sister both were in deep mourning for Reginald Vanderbilt.

VISCOUNT FURNESS.

At the wedding Viscount and Lady Furness entered the taxicab and drove to the Furness town house, but left shortly afterwards for the Furness country residence in Leicestershire.

BODY OF SLAIN MAN FOUND NEAR HORSESHOE LAKE

warrant had been issued against him.

Mrs. Katie Pruetzel, wife of a farmer living about 200 yards from the spot where the body was found, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that she heard a shot fired about 10 o'clock last night. She was in the kitchen of her home with her sister, Miss Marie Holst, and remarked to the sister that it was strange for anyone to be shooting at that time of night.

Near Scene of Other Murders.

The body lay across the lake and to the northeast of the old Sullivan farm, where the bodies of Constable Oliver Hockett and his friend, John Balke, were found last spring in a shallow grave where they had been thrown after moonshiners had shot them to death.

It is about five miles too, from the Eagle Park district which has been the scene of several murders, the latest of an East St. Louis woman dance hall cashier whose body was found in the woods beside the lake a month ago.

So far no one has advanced a theory as to the identity of the slayers in the newest murder. Perhaps he was slain by the moonshiners who infest that district and visit swift death on the double crossing pal or the outsider who tries to shake them down for unofficial bribes.

Perhaps it was the work of one of the gangs of auto thieves who hide their stolen cars in the lonely places about the lake and throw their cast off parts into its brackish waters. Possibly it was the work of bank robbers, or petty wickup men hiding out from the law, or drug traffickers or beer runners. They are all to be found in the Horseshoe Lake country and it is there that many others of the underworld go, too, to write the last word in their quarrels.

Attorney for Former Col-

Death of Florida Woman
Was Due to Accident.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., June 28.—Eugene M. Elliott, who in his college days as an athlete and in later years as an engineer, land promoter and a man of affluence, today faced a coroner's jury as a material witness at an inquiry into his wife's sudden death Saturday night.

His wife, Mrs. Elsie Fortier Elliott, died at a hospital three hours after her arrival at the institution from a fractured skull said by police to have been incurred in a fall from the rear steps of their residence in a fashionable suburb.

Elliott was released from custody last night under $25,000 bond, after having passed Saturday night in the municipal stockade. Yesterday he was taken to the county jail at Clearwater where his attorneys had threatened habeas corpus proceedings.

Statement of Attorney.

Haggard from his experience, Elliott declined to make a statement. His attorney, Jack Holland, however, declared Mrs. Elliott died of injuries that were accidental and belittled the possibility of Elliott being held in connection with her death.

Divorce proceedings were instituted against Elliott by his wife, Saturday only a few hours prior to her death. The instrument filed by Crockett Owen, St. Petersburg attorney, acting for Mrs. Elliott, charged cruel and inhuman treatment and infidelity.

Coming to St. Petersburg in 1922 from Atlantic City, Elliott became identified with others in the promotion and development of the famous Gandy Bridge realty project. Success greeting this venture, Elliott soon was interested in Florida real estate at Jacksonville, Pensacola and other points.

His entry into real estate in Florida was not his first in the South having attempted a drainage project in Louisiana soon after he left the employ of the United States Steel Corporation. This venture proved a failure as his entire efforts in building up the project were lost in a few weeks.

Was Amateur Athlete of Note.

A native of Toledo, Kan., Elliott is reported to have attended school there and also to have studied at the University of Chicago. He was well known in college circles as an amateur boxer and football player.

An indictment alleging failure to pay $500,000 income tax in 1924 growing out of his real estate operations and a subsequent attachment levied on his bank account, is still pending against Elliott in Federal court.

Notices have been sent to the unlocated voters instructing them to appear at the Election Commission's office with proof of residence or have their names stricken from the books.

The heaviest registration Thursday was in the Twenty-second Ward where 2645 names were recorded, and the lightest in the Tenth where the total was 1230. In the Twenty-fifth Ward canvassers had to locate 4,051 registered voters and in the Sixth Ward, 4,027.

The recently opened snake exhibit at the Forest Park Zoo was second only to the St. Louis Cardinals as a Sunday attraction, according to an announcement by officials of the zoo today.

A crowd, estimated by the officials at 15,000 persons, formed a long line in and out of the ostrich house where the first 50 reptiles of the ultimate exhibit are now open to the public view in temporary quarters. The first visitors began arriving before 10 a. m. and by mid-afternoon the efforts of five zoo guards were required to keep the crowd moving. The exhibit is open from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily.

Election Frauds Alleged in Mexico

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, June 28.—Attorney-General Ortega, acting under instructions from the department of Interior, has begun gathering evidence for legal action against numerous officials who are alleged to be making preparations to control the July 4 congressional and senatorial elections. It is stated that fraudulent lists of voters and violence are being used in the electoral campaign. The officials against whom action will be taken include the Governor and most of the members of the State Legislature in Jalisco.

Wright said that he had never heard of anybody signing such a pledge, though it was the Governor's practice to tell appointees that he expected them to live up to the Constitution.

One of the investigators named by Wright was J. A. Tatro, who drew a salary of $250 a month, $5 a day for subsistence and his traveling expenses. Wright said it was his special job to "get after the denatured alcohol situation, which has created a bootleg aristocracy in Philadelphia." Another man was assigned to spy out violations by the brewers. He received $200 a month and his expenses.

Then there were two men who were "under-cover" men. One of them was the Boston police force. He wanted these men, he said, because they had been with him in the army.

Describing the duties of the "under-cover" men, Wright said they went about and investigated "conditions," so that the bureau might know where it should look for evidence. Other men then came along and got the evidence.

Wright said that he had never heard of anybody signing such a pledge, though it was the Governor's practice to tell appointees that he expected them to live up to the Constitution.

Describing the duties of the "under-cover" men, Wright said they went about and investigated "conditions," so that the bureau might know where it should look for evidence. Other men then came along and got the evidence.

"Under Cover" Men Are Scouts.

"In other words," said Reed, "these under-cover men are scouts. They go in and take a few drinks, and then pass on."

Wright said that the W. C. T. U. had collected altogether $130,904, and that he and Attorney-General Woodruff, as the trustees of the fund, had drawn requisitions on it since August, 1923, for $112,000. He said they drew the money out in $4000 lots, and with each requisition gave an account of how the previous $4000 had been spent.

Wright said the usual price of whisky in Philadelphia was 50 cents a drink and of beer from 15 to 40 cents a glass, depending on the character of the place selling the drink.

$17.50 for Drinks in a Day.

In going through a batch of vouchers presented by the witness, Reed discovered that some of the W. C. T. U. sleuths worked in pairs. "Oh, yes," said Wright. "An effort was made to make the cases impregnable."

One Philadelphia agent submitted an expense account of $6 for "cover charges and drinks" in a fashionable cafe. The vouchers disclosed that the agents spent from $6 to $8 almost daily in procuring evidence. One agent had a bill of $17.50 for drinks in one day.

On one of the vouchers, an item of $8.87 for drinks one day was followed by only 65 cents the next day.

"That must have been an awful dry day," commented Reed. "It must have been Sunday," replied Wright.

The agents in the Philadelphia territory invariably spent more for drinks each day than for their living expenses, including food and housing.

Often Necessary to Treat.

Explaining the expense of three of some of the sleuths, Wright said that they often found it necessary to "treat."

"Oh, yes," agreed Reed. "They were good fellows."

After noting numerous items in the vouchers for the purchase of beer and whisky, Reed turned to Wright and observed, "In other words, you violated the law to enforce the law."

Wright contended that it was permissible to violate the law to catch a lawbreaker.

Wright contended that it was permissible to violate the law to catch a lawbreaker.

"You and I would argue a long time over that subject," said Reed. He added that the law did not contemplate that a man should commit murder in order to catch a murderer. Wright did not think that the example applied. Replying to Reed, the witness said that the agents were not buying liquor now so freely as they did in 1923, when they began their operations.

State Attorney General George W. Woodruff, who approved the W. C. T. U. enforcement scheme and is one of the trustees of the fund, is expected to testify tomorrow if a committee subpoena reaches him in time. The committee adjourned to 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Illinois Charges Next on Program of Reed Committee.

After completing the Pennsylvania inquiry, the committee plans to go into the Republican primary in Illinois, in which Senator McKinley was defeated for re-nomination by Frank L. Smith, chairman of the State Commerce Commission. This will be after the adjournment of Congress. Senator Caraway (Dem.), Arkansas, has called the Senate's attention to charges that the McKinley forces expended $1,000,000 in this campaign, and the Smith campaign $2,000,000.

Insult Won't Talk. Others Charge Caraway's Charges.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 28.—Charles Caraway, who was defeated in the senatorial primary in Illinois, called to the attention of the Senate by Senator Caraway (Dem.) of Arkansas have been met with emphatic denials from several of the principals named in connection with the alleged offense, and distribution of money. Others, including Samuel Insull, public utility head, have declined to comment. Insull, who was charged with having contributed to the campaign fund of Frank L. Smith, who defeated Senator Caraway, said he would not talk on the subject. "My reaction to newspaper stories which I have read is just as if I had never read them," he said.

McKinley, confined to his home in Washington by illness, declined to comment on the charges that he had spent $1,000,000 in an unsuccessful campaign, while Smith, in a hospital here following a recent major operation, had been permitted even to read the newspapers.

Allen F. Moore, his campaign manager, said, "We will welcome any investigation. Charges that we spent $2,000,000 are too ridiculous to answer."

William Culver, an officer of the Illinois Commerce Commission, of which Smith is chairman, asserted that Caraway was "taking advantage of Smith's illness, and spreading false, insidious propaganda aimed at only one object—to poison the minds of voters against Smith. Caraway is talking for the benefit of George Brannan, Democratic candidate for the Senate."

Another denial of the charges came from John W. Emond, vice president and Chicago manager of E. H. Rollins & Sons, brokers and bankers. Caraway asserted that when the firm was engaged in a $20,000,000 utility deal it had contributed $100,000 to the Smith campaign fund.

Neither E. H. Rollins & Sons nor any of its officers contributed 5 cents to any campaign or any individual, said Emond.

Two persons were killed and several others slightly injured at 12:30 a. m. yesterday when a large touring car, occupied by nine Negroes, left the pavement on Cahokia road, south of East St. Louis, to pass two parked machines, then plunged down an embankment, turning over several times.

Miss Bernice Howe, 17, of 3191 Summit avenue, East St. Louis, standing beside one of the parked machines, was killed and Edward Taylor, 26, a Negro, of Edwardsville, was taken from the wrecked touring car dead.

The parked machines had been driven south by Kermit Schumacher, 21, of 314 Pennsylvania avenue, and Kermit Croissant, 21, of 1218 Illinois avenue. Dead.

Richard J. Marsteller, 21 years old, of 2515 Sidney street, St. Louis, was killed, and his wife, Mrs. Lillie Cody, 36, of 3907A Cass avenue, Miss Bernice Howe, 17, of 3191 Summit avenue, East St. Louis, Edward Taylor, 26, a Negro, of Edwardsville, Ill.

Four persons were killed and 17 injured in automobile accidents in and near St. Louis over the week-end.

A coroner's verdict of criminal carelessness was returned today against Philip Marqua Jr., 43, a construction foreman, of 1723 Wagner place, in the case of Mrs. Lillie Cody, 36, a waitress, of 2907A Cass avenue, who died on a Frisco train at 7:45 a. m. yesterday of injuries suffered five hours previously, when an automobile driven by Marqua struck a pier of a bridge near Eureka, Mo.

Policemen, who took Mrs. Cody's body from the train at Union Station, testified that Marqua and Eckert Gottschamer, 38, a painter, of 5808 Cote Brilliant avenue, the third occupant of the machine when it struck the bridge, appeared to have been drinking. Gottschamer took the witness stand and testified that Marqua was driving toward the river when, at a point a half mile out of Eureka, the car struck the bridge. Mrs. Cody, who was sitting on Gottschamer's lap, was thrown out and crushed against the bridge, the witness testified. She was placed on the train when she died. An autopsy disclosed that death had been caused by internal injuries. Marqua was ordered held under $100,000 bond. He did not testify.

They were returning from a party at the home of Mrs. Marsteller's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Syba of Edwardsville, at 3:30 a. m. when, three miles south of Edwardsville, Marsteller raised his hands from the wheel to light a cigarette. The automobile turned sharply and plunged down a 10-foot embankment.

THOUSANDS JAM TEMPLE TO GREET MRS. M'PHERSON

Crowd Overflows Into Los Angeles Park and Many Wait All Day to See Evangelist.

SHE TELLS HER STORY OF KIDNAPING

Attributes Plot Against Her to Satan Because of Her Firm Stand on Moral Issues.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, June 28.—Before a congregation of 7500 persons, Mrs. Annie Semple McPherson, the evangelist, yesterday returned to her pulpit in Angelus Temple for the first time since she disappeared from a beach at Ocean Park on May 18.

Long before the service began, streets around the temple were jammed.

The subject of her sermon was "the conquering hosts" in which she told of her plight during her five weeks' absence, recounting how she was kidnapped and held captive in Mexico and how she finally escaped.

Ten minutes before the service began, Mrs. McPherson entered. The entire assemblage rose and thundered a welcome. The ovation lasted for several minutes.

The evangelist showed a marked change from her former fatigued appearance. She told the congregation that she had been in the hands of a leagued specialist so that she might "look like her old self."

Every effort was made to accommodate the throng. Before entering the Temple, Mrs. McPherson, seeing hundreds standing in the sun, directed that room be moved for them. Temple workers gave up their seats and 7500 persons were crowded into a building designed to accommodate 5300.

Many Wait All Day.

The crowd overflowed from the Temple doors into the streets and thence into Los Angeles Park. Hundreds brought their luncheon and waited all day for the appearance of the evangelist.

Every service at Angelus Temple yesterday was a religious festival of unalloyed joy at the return of the leader of the "roses" gospel.

Last night Mrs. McPherson announced she had learned that shortly before her disappearance two suspicious men and a woman were seen loitering about the Temple.

The description of the woman was declared by the pastor totally with that of "Rose," the woman member of the trio which Mrs. McPherson asserts kidnapped her.

Information regarding the suspicious characters was given the evangelist by Mrs. Essie Binkley Lacey, radio hostess at the Temple.

"The woman told me she had been a drug addict but had been saved by Sister McPherson, and wanted as a means of expressing her appreciation, to sing over the radio," Mrs. Lacey said. "I took her name and address and for several days I saw her loitering about the church."

Attributes Plot to Satan.

Mrs. McPherson in one of her sermons yesterday said that because of her unyielding stand on moral questions, Satan plotted her destruction.

She said she had laughed at newspaper accounts of reputed plots to kidnap her but she now realized "that even then the devil was laying his plans."

Mrs. McPherson devoted most of the evening address to answering criticisms of her story that she was kidnapped. She told of being kept in a desert shack near Agua Prieta, Mexico, and of her recovery at a hospital in Douglas, Arizona, after a 20-mile hike across the desert.

While making no reference to the absence of sunburn after her long tramp across the desert, the evangelist told how, while fleeing from her captors, she used part of

Part of the resolution referred to the Chamber of Commerce and charged that the Chamber was actively interested in the Rutherford case and had joined in an alleged plot to remove Sidener from office. The document added, "Howard Sidener has been fair to labor."

Five men, who went to Sportsman's Park yesterday to see the Cardinals and Cubs play ball, were unable to find unreserved seats in the grandstand, so they took possession of reserved seats. Presently five other men, who had purchased the reserved seats, came along and an usher asked the first arrivals to move. They refused and, after a team official had remonstrated in vain with them, the police were called in.

The five men still refused to move and were moved with as much force as the occasion called for and given free seats in a patrol wagon. They gave their names as Harry Smith, 1402 1/2 Union boulevard, Harry J. Smith Jr., his son; Oscar H. Beal, 5022 Garfield avenue; Edward F. Salland, 6402 Enright avenue, University City; and Harry R. ROBBERS GET $559 AND RING IN HOLDUP AT DELICATESSEN

Miss Bernice Howe, 17, of 3101 Belmont avenue, East St. Louis, standing beside one of the parked machines, was killed and Edward Taylor, 26, a Negro, of Edwardville, was taken from the wrecked touring car dead.

The parked machines had been driven south by Kermit Schumacher, 21, of 314 Pershing avenue, and Kermit Croissant, 22, of 1213 Illinois avenue. They had stopped to repair a gasoline leak in Schumacher's machine. Miss Howe, with Croissant and Miss Ruth Hamilton, 16, of 2815 Summit avenue, were standing

Mrs. Grundy Really Lived And Censored a Venus

Housekeeper at Hampton Court in 1840's and 1850's Collected Gallery of Art
Objectionable to Her.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, June 19.—Mrs. Grundy has been unmasked. Many folk have asked, "Who was—If there ever was such a person—Mrs. Grundy—that stern arbiter of morals and decency?" Encyclopedias say that she was a character in John Morton's comedy, "Speed the Plough," written in the latter part of the eighteenth century, and Dickens had a Mr. Grundy, who presumably had a Mrs.

But Ernest Law, an official of Hampton Court Palace, at last discloses the secret. There was a real Mrs. Grundy and she was housekeeper at Hampton Court Palace in the 1840's and 1850's. Her name really was "Mrs. Grundy" and she certainly filled the bill.

Tucked away in historic Hampton Court Palace is a secret room which is not mentioned in the guide books and which is not shown to the ordinary tourist, but which is known to the palace staff as Mrs. Grundy's Gallery. It is a very dark room, leading off the dining room, and there are gathered the statues and pictures which royal housekeeper Mrs. Grundy thought unfit for publication.

According to Ernest Law, a life-tenant resident at Hampton Court Palace, the living Mrs. Grundy was as stern a critic of morality as the eighty years previous lady of (Morton's) fiction. In the Morton comedy Mrs. Grundy never appeared on the stage, but her bosom friend, a farmer's wife, used to ask, what would Mrs. Grundy say? on every question affecting the proprieties. The Mrs. Grundy of early Victorian days was equally stern in her censorship of morals.

Any picture or piece of sculpture which she thought "unfit for publication" in the state rooms she consigned to "Mrs. Grundy's gallery"—and there kept it under lock and key.

Refused Admission to Official.

Among the treasures consigned there was Carlin's beautiful "Venus Recumbent," and a leaden statue of Venus which had been sent from Windsor Castle. The "Venus Recumbent" picture is now exhibited in the State rooms, and the statue is in Henry VIII's Pond Garden.

On one occasion, says Law, the First Commissioner of Works (Britain's equivalent to a Minister of Public Works) visited Hampton Court Palace and was interested in the closed and locked door of "Mrs. Grundy's Gallery." He asked for the key, and Mrs. Grundy was sent for. She declined to open the door, despite the First Commissioner's insistence that he was one of "Her Majesty's Ministers," and would only say that nothing but an order signed by "His Lordship the Lord Chamberlain of Her Majesty's household" would induce her to allow anybody to enter the forbidden room.

Whether the curious First Commissioner of Works ever saw the contents of the secret room, is not recalled by Law, but certain it is that until her death nobody had free access to "Mrs. Grundy's Gallery." The room is now used as a store room and many of its former "treasures" (or "indecentities," according to the viewpoint of the donor and recipient) have since been dispersed as unworthy of display at a national museum.

But there was a Mrs. Grundy.

DOESN'T HAVE TO EAT HAT

Iowa Revivalist Convinces Judges Bible Is Word of God.

Columbus Junction, Ia., June 28. The Rev. Oren Pecaut, evangelist, who last week said he would eat a straw hat if he failed to prove the Bible to be the Word of God, preached his way to triumph in his sermon on "Science and the Bible" yesterday. A committee of business and professional men decided the evangelist had convinced them that it would not be necessary for him to eat his hat.

DON'T tie up to a man who keeps his electrical job done right.

The electrical contracting business requires a well-stocked shop with an experienced crew—and a real contractor, not a side-line dabbler. The established contractor is easily located whenever you want him, but not so the derby hat variety.

This city has plenty of capable contractors—men who do good work and use only the best materials. For quality supplies and speedy delivery these men count on Graybar. If you don't know who or where these contractors are, phone or write us—we'll be glad to tell you.

"Sure, food that's good for me, but make it taste like something, too"—so he starts with Puffed Rice

MEN want to eat food that's "good" for them, of course. But above all, they want food that coaxes the appetite into action, too. That's why so many have turned to Puffed Rice, said by experts to be the most delicious cereal food known; a food that proves food that's good for you can be gloriously delicious, too.

Each grain is steam puffed to eight times its natural size. And that makes digestion easy. Then it's oven toasted. Which makes it oddly enticing to the taste.

It's food that supplies the vitally needed carbohydrate elements you need for health's sake. Tastes like toasted nuts, tempts like a confection, makes it unnecessary to eat cereal foods you don't like much, simply because you feel you need them.

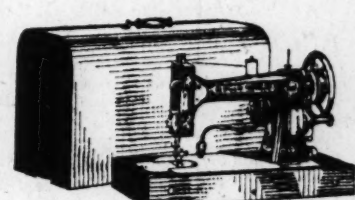

Isn't it better to have that kind of cereal on your table; one that tempts and entices than just an ordinary one? Most people think it is. Try Puffed Rice just for once. You will be delighted. Obtain at your grocery store.

Cuticura Heals Large Red Pimples On Face and Arm

"My trouble began on my face and left arm with large, red pimples that itched and burned causing me to scratch. Scratching caused eruptions, and my clothing affected the breaking out on my arm so that I had to keep my arm bandaged. The trouble lasted three months. I tried other remedies without success. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped me, and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Martha E. Finstad, 2017 Baxter Ave. Superior, Wis.

Use Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum to promote and maintain skin purity, skin comfort and skin health; the Soap to cleanse and purify, the Ointment to soothe and heal, the Talcum to powder and refresh.

MAN SHOT BY NURSE WHO ENDS OWN LIFE

Clipped Quotations on Inconstancy Only Indication of Motive in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 28.—A few clippings, most of them dealing with the inconstancy of men to women, are the only indications of motive in the killing of Norman Hewitt, 50 years old, Lake Forest bachelor, by Miss Nora Renwick, 30, a nurse, who used the last bullet in her pistol to end her own life. Hewitt, son of a former Board of Trade member, was related to several wealthy North Shore families.

"Man's love is of a man's life a thing apart; 'tis woman's whole existence," was one of the quotations found in the nurse's room after the bodies were discovered yesterday in Hewitt's home.

Miss Renwick, formerly employed as a nurse by Hewitt's mother, who died on June 9, was admitted to the Hewitt home by the housekeeper, who called her employer and left the two together. The housekeeper, who is deaf, did not hear the shots and it was not until three hours later that she found the bodies. Hewitt had been shot twice, three bullets apparently had gone wild, and with the last the nurse had shot herself.

A possible motive of jealousy was suggested by Andrew R. Dole, a relative of Hewitt. Miss Renwick had left the household more than a year ago.

NEGRO DRIVER ADMITS HE SHOT WHEN FORCED TO STOP

Man Charged With Fleeing After Collision Says He Thought White Men Were Robbers.

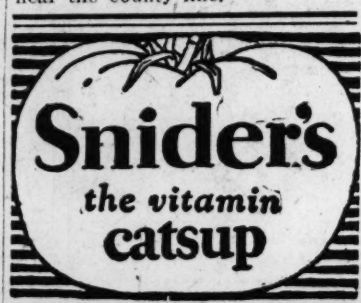

Francis Glaser, 21 years old, of 1214 Prairie avenue, was driving east on Easton avenue, with two friends, at 11:20 o'clock last night, when, at Spring avenue, his car was struck by another, occupied by Negroes, who did not stop.

Glaser pursued to Evans avenue and Francis street, and overtook a car containing Negroes which, he says, was the one that had collided with him, and called upon the occupants to stop. He was answered with revolver shots, one of which wounded his left hand and another grazed his abdomen. The Negroes jumped out and abandoned their car.

Through the license, ownership of the abandoned car was traced to Perry Brown, 31, of 4315A Cote Brilliante avenue. He admitted firing the shots but denied being in any collision and said that when the white men crowded him to the curb he thought they were robbers and that was why he fired. He is held.

CANADIAN CABINET RESIGNS AFTER CLASH

Premier Mackenzie King Out,
Arthur Meighan May Replace Him.

By the Associated Press.
OTTAWA, Ont., June 28.—Premier Mackenzie King today announced the resignation of the Government. He made the announcement at the opening of the House of Commons this afternoon. The action followed the recent heated debate in the House on the report of the parliamentary customs investigating committee.
The Premier said Governor-General Byng had refused his request that Parliament be dissolved and that he had decided to resign. It is expected that Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservative party, the principal opposition group, will be invited to form a new ministry.
The House immediately adjourned, amid conservative cheers. Premier King in announcing his decision said: "Public interest demands dissolution of this house. As Prime Minister I so advised His Excellency shortly after noon today. His Excellency having declined to grant dissolution, I thereupon tendered the resignation of the Government, which His Excellency was pleased to accept."
Meighen was summoned to Government house by Governor-General Byng this afternoon.

CITIZENS TO BUILD HOME FOR FAMILY THAT LOST 7 IN FIRE

$2250 Raised at Belleville for New House for Mrs. Ida Haas and Two Children.

Donations totaling $2250 will be used to erect a new home for Mrs. Ida Haas and her sons, Oliver, 4 months old, and Martin Maline, 20, the three survivors of the John Haas family, of which Haas and six children were burned to death in their home on Indiana avenue, Belleville, in May. The money will be applied on a lot and material and the construction will be done by volunteer workmen.
The lot on which the house destroyed by fire was located has been sold and a new lot purchased. Work on the house is to be started at once and if the money on hand is insufficient, additional donations will be solicited by a committee of citizens.

PENNELL ESTATE $350,000

Ultimately His Paintings Will Go to Library of Congress.

By the Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, June 28.—Joseph Pennell, noted etcher and lithographer, left an estate valued at approximately $350,000 and consisting entirely of personal property. His will was probated today. With the exception of a $10,000 legacy to a faithful servant, all the estate was left to his widow.
As disclosed to President Coolidge recently by Mrs. Pennell, the entire estate ultimately will go to the Library of Congress. The gift includes prints, paintings, manuscripts, copyrights and the money requisite to maintain the collection and add to them. In his will Mr. Pennell explained that he had made the bequest to the Government "because the United States is spending money on prints and encouraging art and artists, and has encouraged me." Pennell died last April.

PRESSURE APPLIED SENATORS TO PASS FARM BILL

Among Republicans Is Uphold Prestige of Coolidge, Who Favors
Revolving Fund.

FARM BLOC STILL AGAINST MEASURE

Despite Opposition, There Are Signs Efforts to Get Bill Through Are Having Effect.

By CHARLES MICHELSON,
A Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
WASHINGTON, June 28.—Farm
bills have developed into an issue to save the prestige of the President and pressure is being brought to swing into line those Republican Senators who have opposed the farm lobby's direction in opposing the Fess bill.
The President has indicated.
The argument is being urged on that it is dangerous to go back on the campaign with a record having done nothing for the farmers after having thrown
the Dawes-McNary-Haugen
bill and that the passage of the measure, which provides for a revolving fund of $100,000,000 to farm co-operatives in market-surplus crops, would enable Republican campaign speakers to charge the administration against the welfare of indus-

Pressure Having Effect

try principal effort, however, is to get the President from the involved in having his own policy discarded his direct and open plea for legislation, and therefore the Democratic congress that recent political developments in the West have shown the President's influence has been.

McNary Bill, Finally Succumbed To the Plea of the President

Congressional leaders have tentatively set Saturday as the date for adjournment. To bring advocates
of the rivers and harbors bill into
line for adjournment, this measure,
already passed by the House, probably will be given preferred status
on the calendar for the session
beginning next December.
Other important measures which
will have to wait for action in December if the Saturday adjournment
plan is carried out, will include
coal legislation, the French debt
settlement and the prohibition bill.

Less Hard Liquor, More Wines Purchased Under Quebec Law, 5 Years' Record Shows

Canadian Act Promotes Temperance, Investigator Says—Dutch "Gin Ship" Abandons Yearly Visit for Lack of Trade.

By GEORGE R. WITTE,
A Staff Correspondent of the New York Evening World and the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1928.)
MONTREAL, June 28.—Only 12 hours from Broadway, and yet—
Before me I have a small pamphlet entitled "Quebec Liquor Commission, Price List No. 17, May, 1926," in which are listed more than 400 different kinds of wines, champagnes, whiskies and other spirits, and the addresses of 90
stores in the Province of Quebec.
50 of them in Montreal, where this liquor may be purchased at prices which, on the whole, are below
those quoted by wholesale houses in the United States before prohibition.

At every second or third corner in this city there is a "tavern"
where beer and ale are on draft, and in almost every block
there is a grocery store with large signs advertising different brands
of these beverages.

It is like the United States before prohibition, and yet it isn't. It is like certain temperance countries
in Europe, yet it is different.

After making a personal study of the workings of the Quebec alcohol liquor act and also discussing it with a number of officials of the Quebec Liquor Commission, I have reached the conclusion that it is the most effective measure in achieving its purpose—temperance—enacted in Europe or North America.

From personal observation in the United States and Finland, where there is complete prohibition, in Sweden and Norway, where they have temperance laws, and in several other European countries,
where there are certain restrictions
on the sale of liquor, I am in a position to say that none of these countries has been able to curb the illegal sale of hard liquor—boy-legging in other words—so successfully and without the expenditure of large sums of money as has the Province of Quebec.

The Quebec liquor act has just entered its sixth year, and, contrary to the Volstead law in the United States, has produced such a success that no longer can be considered an experiment. The authorities are satisfied, the public is satisfied, and the visitors, particularly those from the United States, are satisfied.
There have been a few changes and modifications of the law since it came effective May 1, 1921, but on the whole the original act has remained unchanged.

Liquor Price List.
In looking through the Liquor Commission's price list one finds that the Scotch whisky of the popular brands costs $1.20 a bottle,
that Rouben and other American whiskies may be had at from $2.90
to $6.25 a bottle, that brandy averages $4 a bottle, and the French liquors, such as Curneau and Benedictine, cost about $4 to $4.50 a bottle. The best-known brands of champagne average $4 a quart.

On the other hand, there are many well-known brands of French wines, Sauterne, Macon, Chablis, Medoc, St. Julien and scores of others, that sell for less than $1 a quart. While the native Canadian wines, which all are officially tested and in quality and taste are far superior to the "red ink" and other so-called wines
sold in American speakeasies, sell for 40 cents a quart and $1.75 a gallon.

These prices, as any person familiar with Europe knows, are extremely reasonable and compare favorably with the prices prevailing in the United States.

McNary bill, finally succumbed
to the plea of the President.
Congressional leaders have tenta-
tively set Saturday as the date for
of the rivers and harbors bill into
line for adjournment, this measure,
already passed by the House, probably will be given preferred status
on the calendar for the session
beginning next December.

Other important measures which
will have to wait for action in December if the Saturday adjournment
plan is carried out, will include
coal legislation, the French debt
settlement and the prohibition bill.

The new Carondelet branch opens its activities with a membership of 650, the result of a membership campaign ending Saturday.

AMUNDSEN IN SEATTLE, DONE WITH EXPLORING

"All the Big Problems Are Solved," Says Leader of Polar Expedition.

By the Associated Press.
SEATTLE, WASH., June 28.—
Capt. Roald Amundsen and his 16 companions in the flight over the North Pole are being entertained here today following the arrival of the party from Nome, Alaska.
Lincoln Ellsworth of New York, American backer of the flight,
said he would depart probably tonight with Amundsen and the other Norwegian airmen for the East. The Amundsen party is scheduled to stop in Minneapolis and St. Paul. Amundsen expects to sail from New York for Norway Saturday. Ellsworth plans to continue to Washington to present to President Coolidge a flag carried over the Pole.

Umberto Nobile, designer and pilot of the dirigible Norge, expects to go to San Francisco to lecture and later go to Chicago and Akron, O., as consulting engineer in a dirigible construction project.
Amundsen said he was through with Arctic exploration, but the seven Norwegian and one Swedish member of the crew are contemplating another polar trip to determine whether there is land between the Pole and Alaska.

"My work is fulfilled," the Norwegian leader of the expedition declared. "All the big problems are solved. The work that remains in polar exploration is a matter of detail. Let the others handle it."

He estimated the cost of his expedition at $500,000.

Nobile said the Norge, which is at Teller, Alaska, where the flight ended, will be shipped on the first freighter to arrive there. Its destination was not revealed. It is owned by the Norwegian Aero Club.

HURRICANE RANGE-FINDING SYSTEM DEVELOPED BY NAVY

Data Compiled From Radio Dispatches Enables Ships to Dodge Dangerous Weather.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 28.—Development of a hurricane range-finding system by use of radio, barometric pressure charts and weather maps aboard the navy cargo ship Kittery has attracted attention of navy navigators to such an extent that general use of the system by all navigators is being recommended by the department.

The system depends on use of weather bulletins broadcast to mariners by radio twice daily by the Arlington (Va.) and San Francisco naval stations.

By plotting this data on a weather chart, supplemented by a storm warning sent out by secondary coastal radio stations, the Kittery,
on the way to the West Indies, evaded a hurricane in August, 1924, which seriously damaged great liners and caused distress to shipping from Haiti to Labrador.

The Kittery weather chart showed no safe path for the vessel and she was prudently headed back to port.
A month later, another hurricane appeared. The Kittery weather map at the time showed a clear route down the coast of the Bahamas and along the Northern Cuban route. She took it and enjoyed the fine weather all the way, although the storm was so severe that 27 met death on the island of Tortola, not far off her course.

The Kittery storm-dodging system is described in a navy bulletin as continuously plotting radio weather data, including barometric readings.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION BILL FILED BY ST. LOUISAN

To Be Presented Under Initiative
and Differs From State Act, Also To Be Submitted.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 28.—
A workmen's compensation bill bearing 58,880 signatures, to be presented under the initiative law
on the ballot in the coming election, was filed here today by Thomas J. McNamara, head of the Building Trades Council of St.
Louis. This bill provides that a system of State insurance be inaugurated to insure to injured employees two-thirds of their average weekly salary, not to exceed $20 a week.

The bill differs from the State compensation act of 1923, which is to be submitted under the referendum for action by the voters.
The State bill, which has the endorsement of the Federation of Labor, the Associated Industries
of Missouri and many labor unions, provides for private systems of insurance and a two-thirds weekly average salary payment to injured employees not exceeding $20 a week.

The trades council bill is regarded here as a minority effort to confuse the issue by those opposing the State compensation act.
It is pointed out that as matters stand, both bills must appear on the ballot and that this will confuse the voters. Under the initiative, only 45,890 names are required.

PASTOR ARGUES FOR ONE DAY OF REST IN SEVEN

The Rev. R. H. Stafford Says It Readjusts Relations to Life and Increases Efficiency.

The argument for a day of rest,
one in seven, was made by the Rev.
Russell H. Stafford, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church, in his sermon yesterday on "The Right Use of the Lord's Day." He testified to the increased efficiency won by a day of rest.

One thing, he said, that handicapped many in their accomplishment, was an exaggerated feeling of self-responsibility. "The stupendous importance of ourselves and our job." But that feeling was lost and its absurdity seen
"when we stop long enough each week to readjust our relations to life and see the preoccupation of our labors from some little distance, in perspective against the total action of our fellowmen."

GERMAN DOCTORS DENOUNCE DRY LAWS AS DEMORALIZING

Conference at Eisenach Approves Campaign of Education Against Intemperance.

By the Associated Press.
EISENACH, Germany, June 28.—
The conference of German phy-

nent dry advocates, adopted a resolution yesterday against all forms of prohibition, declaring that legal restrictions on the sale of liquor would lead to demoralization of the race.

MRS. BESANT EXPLAINS THEOSOPHY'S PROPHET

Young Hindu Spoke Once With Voice of Christ, She Declares.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, June 28.—Mrs. Annie Besant apparently has silenced attacks by Theosophists on her prediction that Krishnamurti was the great teacher, through whom a new dispensation will be revealed to the world. There have been some dissenters in theosophical meetings she has attended in London, but the venerable high priestess seems to have averted the storm which threatened before she arrived in England with the young man who heads the Order of the Star of the East, of which Mrs. Besant is guardian.

Mrs. Besant believes the young Hindu is the medium through which the Christ, or the Lord Mat-trey of the Hindus, will make known his will.

"Christ's ministry" lasted but three years," said Mrs. Besant.
"His body was crucified, but the great spirit lived, and, assuming a different form which was able to pass through doors and vanish
at will, he appeared to his disciples in various places. He told them he would come again."

"The coming has been hastened slightly because of the present world crisis. That has been revealed to me. Again the Christ, the Lord Matreya or the great world teacher, as you will, has chosen to manifest himself in one who, like the man Jesus, is of a despised and downtrodden race.
I was told this while Krishnamurti was still a child."

"He first gave evidence of his mission on what I regard as an historic date, Dec. 28, 1924, at the Public of the Theosophical Society in India. He is an eloquent and forceful speaker in his normal condition, but suddenly he spoke with a voice not his own. A hushed spell came over that huge gathering of some 20,000 persons, and like one inspired, he gave a message to prepare for the second coming of Christ. So far that is the only occasion of which Krishnamurti has spoken in public as the voice of Christ."

Mrs. Besant explains that Theo-sophists, who through purity and spirituality of life have cultivated the power to have their spirits leave their bodies and wander in heavenly regions, understand to what degree Krishnamurti possesses this faculty. From the boy's earliest childhood he was able to send his spirit from his body at will, and while his body slept his spirit was away gathering wisdom which he has recorded in his writings.

ROYALIST OUTBREAK IN FRANCE

By the Associated Press.
STRASBOURG, France, June 28.—
A policeman was wounded and two Royalist students were arrested because the Royalists insisted on conducting a public parade, despite prohibitions on the part of the municipality of Strasbourg. The outbreak occurred after a meeting at which Leon Daudet, the Royal-ist leader, made a speech in favor of the demand of the Alsatian Catholics that they be treated tolerantly by the Government.

FRANCE HOLDS DEBT PACT FOR GUARANTEE OF CREDITS

Caillaux Wants Written Pledge
That U. S. Will Open Wall Street to Him.

PARIS, June 28.—Finance Minister Caillaux will not ask Parliament to ratify the Mellon-Berenger debt accord until he received definite assurance from the United States that France can count on obtaining ample credit in the United States to stabilize the franc,
according to semi-official report
today.

Caillaux had a long conversation
yesterday with Deputy Bokanowski, former secretary of the Budget Committee, who, it is understood, will be sent to Washington to negotiate some kind of credit arrangement which Caillaux considers indispensable.

It is believed that assurances already have been given at Washington that directly ratification is obtained there will be no difficulty in opening Wall street to the French treasury, but Caillaux wants a written agreement to that effect.

FORMER FASCIST LEADERS INVOLVED IN BANK SCANDAL

Twelve Men Arrested Following Closing of Agricultural Bank by Farin-acci's Successor.

EX-PRESIDENT OF DEPOSITORY HELD

Mussolini Told Secretary General to Put Down Corruption Regardless of Consequences.

By the Associated Press.
ROME, June 28.—Italy is in the throes of a widespread financial scandal in which men prominent in political and financial circles are involved. Twelve men already have been arrested in various cities, while warrants have been issued for 10 others.

The scandal involves men who were high in the Fascist party councils during the regime of Robert Farinacci, whose office of Secretary-General was taken over some time ago by Signor Turati.

When Turati made a report on the recent closing of the agricultural Bank of Parma, which had deposits of $5,000,000 in its 20
branches, Premier Mussolini told him to put down corruption regardless of the consequences.

Ex-Bank President Held.
Among those arrested is Count
Luigi Lusignea, at one time president of the bank. It is said by police that he attempted to commit suicide when apprehended.

Others under arrest are: Giam Battista Biagi, Swiss Consul-General at Genoa; Prof. Alessandro Groppi of Parma University; and Prof. Ghisellini and Calvi.

The specific charges have not been made public. The Popolo di Roma, a semi-official organ, says that until Lusignea was arrested, it was believed nobody would dare act against him as the roots of his influence "were so deep that it seemed absurd to try to tear them up."

The newspaper says that the people of Parma are overjoyed at the trend of events and that numerous placards have been posted there dealing with the case, one of them saying "the duke's word will prevail."

Campaign for "Moralization." Fascist organs assert that the present campaign for "moralization" has as its purpose not only the elimination of corruption, but the removal of the psychological attitude of extremism, which the Government realizes "is doing great harm at home and abroad. Although progress is slow, it is said Mussolini is prepared to carry the fight to the end, even if it is necessary to dissolve the party."

Farinacci was a militant Fascist leader in Cremona when, in 1925,
he was given the post of Secretary-General, which ranks next to Mussolini's leadership. Persons high in the party objected to Far-inacci's activities. Particular objection was raised when he tried to convince one of the defendants in the trial of the men accused of the murder of Deputy Matteotti.
Socialist, who it was alleged, was slain at the behest of the Fascist party.

der Cover" Agents.

sistant Secretary of the Treasury

allowance of $1500.

SHAW A CHARACTER IN H. G. WELLS' BOOK

Real Persons Under Own Names Figure in Forthcoming Volume.

Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Publisher Publishing Co. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, June 26.—H. G. Wells, in a three-volume novel, which will be published a volume a month, in the autumn and entitled "The World of William Clissold," purposes to introduce real persons who, under their own names, will meet the fictitious character. It is to be the most ambitious as well as the longest of Wells' novels. The preface defends the practice of using real people. Its main aim is to deny that the hero, Clissold, is intended to portray the author himself. He writes:

"A great number of real people are actually named in this story. It is the author submits, impossible to get the full effect of contemporary life in which living ideas and movements play a dominating part without doing that. You cannot have a man like William Clissold going about the world and never meeting anybody he has ever heard of."

"Dr. Jung is made to talk in a London flat. It is very much as he talks in a London flat. He appears because certain original ideas of him have been taken. Mabel Hillenbrand of Brooklyn, N. Y., is introduced at the Clissold point of view and it was at once recognized that she was not to be a far-reaching suggestion that came from him and clumsy or self-important to make a foot note or a preface. She again, a woman of the eighties, blows into a Kensington evening."

SIKADO ESTATE OF ST. LOUIS WOMAN TO GO TO NIECE

Mrs. Phoebe Delilah Nye's Will Contested in Favor of Mrs. Mabel Hillenbrand.

A decision by Circuit Judge Calhoun today in the suit to construe the will of Mrs. Phoebe Delilah Nye interprets the document to mean that her niece, Mrs. Mabel Hillenbrand of Brooklyn, N. Y., is entitled to all her trust estate.

By a codicil it appeared Mrs. Nye intended that her surviving heirs at the expiration of the trust were to receive only $10,000 each, and the remainder going to the city of St. Louis to establish fountains "where man and beast may at all times have fresh water to drink." The court, however, holds that the city has no interest in the estate and orders that the money be turned over to Mrs. Hillenbrand as sole heir.

Mrs. Nye died 11 years ago and her estate has been held in trust by the Mercantile Trust Co. for the benefit of her brother, Charles Nye, who died in Brooklyn, who died a year ago. Suit to construe the will was filed by the trustee, which is ready to terminate the trust.

SPEAKING PARTS FOR 17 CHORISTERS IN "PINK LADY"

New Municipal Opera Production Tonight: "Don Juan" at the Garden Theater.

The largest number of chorus members ever to have roles in a municipal opera production will appear in "The Pink Lady," which opens tonight.

Those to whom speaking parts have been assigned—17 in all—are Margaret Noble, Bernice Pisman, Ninette Snyder, Helen Kornuth, Minnie Gehring, Dorothy Ahaus, Bernice Strobeck, Anna Frein, Ruth Kenney, Virginia Butts, Genevieve Mooney, Louise Heilmueller, James Clark, Victor Robbins, Newell Goodrich, Louis Rupp and Robert Butts.

The attendance at "The Spring Maid," which closed last night, was slightly less than that of "The Chocolate Soldier," due to unfavorable weather.

The city has been canvassed for Spanish furniture and other properties for the production of Moliere's "Don Juan," which begins tonight at the Garden Theater. The cast to be used, a translation by Thomas Wood Stevens, is said to be the only uncensored version in English.

New Films

By NIE.

THERE must be some organization which has in its keeping the entertaining of the inmates of the Home for the Feeble Minded and to the chairman of the amusement committee we more or less respectfully submit the motion picture, "The Old Army Game" as the piece de resistance for the evening show following this summer's annual picnic. We are willing to admit that it is not perfect for such a purpose—the only partly feeble minded will not enjoy it for instance—but the permanent residents of the Home will find much in the film to laugh at. The committee may inspect the film this week at the Missouri Theater. "The Old Army Game" is a picture of a series of disconnected skits in which W. C. Fields appeared in one of the poorest of the Ziegfeld Follies. There are enough laughs in it to make a fairly good one-reel comedy and Louise Brooks, exceedingly easy to look at, fills out the picture but the picture as a whole is not only awfully simple but is simply awful. The stage show, "Southern Melodies," is one of the best the Missouri has offered.

Silent Musical Comedy.

THE speaking stage is also turned to again to furnish the story for "The Prince of Pilsen" which is at Loew's State. It is, of course, much more elaborately done in celluloid than it was in its original form but the bright dialogue and the sparkling melodies are missing although to the newer generation who never saw the old musical comedy it will probably prove good entertainment. George Sidney is funny as the man from Cincinnati and Anita Stewart, looking as lovely as she did about the time the original show was produced—and that was a good many years ago—is delightful as his daughter. As a stage attraction Bee Palmer sings and rhymes. She has paid more attention to developing the latter accomplishment than she has to her voice.

Cave Woman Stuff.

THE best of this week's offerings is "The Wilderness Woman" at the Grand Central. Lyric Skyscraper and Capitol theatres which tells in an enjoyable, if somewhat dragged out manner, of the adventures of an Alaskan miner and his daughter who strike it rich and move to New York to spend their first million. There are the usual complications of getting into good clothes, keeping the peas on the knife and the other sure fire stunts of the newly rich but in the end Allen Pringle, who is the hard-boiled daughter with a wailon in either hand, shows that she can dress and eat with the best of them, and Chester Conklin, who from a slap stick comedian of the slapstick sort, has come to be the best character actor of the screen, is genuinely funny as the transplanted miner.

Loose Widows.

WHAT with so many well dressed gentlemen in the world, who may or may not owe their tails, how are two poor ladies going to separate the heavy sugar papas from the lemons? Louise Fazenda and a pretty girl, whose name we forget, go hunting pay-dirt in the jungles of Palm Beach by the trial and error method. Their motto is "When in doubt—faint." They are obliged to faint quite frequently. It's a hard world. Once Louise allows her pal to accept the proposal of a man, bank account unseen, and he turns out to be a fortune hunter who owes the hotel $575. However, gold-digging has become a standardized industry since the days of the Forty Niners, and Louise discovers the best way to tell a sap from a millionaire is to put him on the pan. If he turns away with a hurt look, he's a millionaire; if he brags it out, he's a sap. Millionaires anxious to wed pretty widows, be it known, are always unassuming and very gentlemanly fellows who say simply: "Call me Jerry" and never look at a lady when her shoulder is exposed. To test this theory Louise exposes a shoulder to a man dressmaker from New York and he straightens his necktie. He gets the idea. After many mishaps a real millionaire turns up to marry Louise's pal, and the two girls, being models of clothes not propriety, accept him with rejoicing. The title of the picture is "Footloose Widows," and the audience soon discovers that Louise and her girl friend are not real widows. Real widows would have known by instinct what it took them six reels of fairly good comedy to find out. At the St. Louis this week with vaudeville.

Volcanic Love.

ON a volcanic island in the South Seas, where villains bestow lava-leers upon heroines and heroes risk sunburn by leaving their shirt fronts open, Midge Belland, a poor little shoggy, gets in trouble, only herself to blame. When, oh when, will shop-girls who sell South Sea Islands learn to take along at least two afternoon frocks and an asbestos swimming suit for wear during eruptions? Before "Black Paradise" at Kings and Rivoli this week is ended Midge is reduced to two yards of burlesque on the island as a costume. Photographically speaking, the picture is full of double exposures, especially in the later scenes where Midge appears. Her attire is absolutely inappropriate, as she had a date with the villain, whose thoughts were not of the noblest sort anyway, and she was expecting the volcano to erupt any minute. There is a race between the villain and the volcano to cause Midge grief, and the volcano wins. A realistic volcano it is, too, and pours forth rivers of molten lava. Just as the molten death rushes in upon Midge, the hero (Edmund Lowe) scrambles down from a sulphur mine where he had been working and rescues her. This picture is entertaining straight through and goes to show that the old South Seas haven't changed a bit. The natives there are still dancing the shimmy and volcanoes are still breaking up production scenes just as the villain turns the key in the lock.

CLOROX removes ink spots

Since CLOROX has been discovered, a spot of ink is no more serious on white cotton and linen fabrics than a speck of soot. This bottled magic successfully bleaches and removes ink, medicine, grass, scorch and other stains. First, rinse the stained portion in clear water. Dilute CLOROX, using one part to twenty parts of water, and let the stained portion soak until the stain has vanished. Then rinse well in cold water. Always keep CLOROX handy.

POLICEMAN WHO SHOT SALOON KEEPER HELD

J. A. Robinson and a Department Chauffeur Also Suspended in Case.

Patrolman James A. Robinson, 37 years old, of Magnolia Avenue District, while off duty Saturday night, shot and seriously wounded Raymond Goores, 34, of 4323 Clayton avenue, a saloonkeeper at Tower Grove and Clayton avenues. Robinson is under bond on an assault to kill charge and has been suspended pending a trial before the Police Board on charges of unbecoming conduct and intoxication. Arrested with him was Edward Joyce, 35, a police chauffeur, who has been suspended.

Robinson, Joyce and two other men, in civilian clothes, entered

Goores' saloon shortly before midnight. They had sandwiches and soft drinks, the barkeeper said, and argued among themselves as to who should pay the bill, $1.60. Finally, Joyce tossed a $5 bill on the bar and walked to the vestibule followed by the others.

Goores said he rang up the sale and ran to the door with the change. In the vestibule, he declared, Robinson drew his revolver

and fired three shots at him.
Goores was wounded in the left thigh and right arm. Night riders of Magnolia District, who noticed a commotion at the saloon, stopped and arrested Robinson who declared Goores had assaulted him.
He surrendered a police revolver
with three discharged cartridges.
Joyce was arrested at his home,
3734 Page boulevard, and made no
statement. Robinson lives at 6231

Reber place and has been on the force six years.

BIG FO

LEAGUE "SAYING GOOD-BYE TO US," DECLARES ALFONSO

Spanish Monarch Says His Country Has not Received the Treatment That Is Due It.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, June 28.—"If there were grave troubles in Spain, do you think that I would be here now?" said King Alfonso to Robert Devos, a member of the French Academy, in an interview for the Figaro.

The King praised the regime of Gen. Primo de Rivera, virtual dictator in Spain.

"You can affirm without fear of denial that internal peace has been re-established in Spain," said the monarch.

Two Spaniards who had been expelled from Spain were arrested in Paris yesterday. One of them is alleged to be the man who assassinated the Bishop of Zaragoza several years ago. A third desperado is being sought in order to insure the safety of King Alfonso and Queen Victoria while they are in France on their way to England.

Speaking of Spain's attitude towards the League of Nations, Alfonso said: "I have been and am still a most ardent partisan of the League, but it seems to me it is dangerous to try and compose that assembly of interbellum elements as interbellum. Wouldn't it be better to introduce neutrals who, under certain circumstances, might bring a peaceful calming influence with their impartiality?"

"They Just Say Good-Bye."

"I believe it would have been better to have admitted Germany to the League at the start. Then we would have avoided really big difficulties. Finally, it doesn't seem to me that Spain has been accorded the treatment to which she has a right, namely a permanent seat on the League of Nations Council."

The King, replying to a question as to whether Spain intended to leave the League of Nations, said: "We were made to sign a certain article in which it was said that temporary members of the Council after a certain time would not be re-elected. We are not taking leave—they just say good by to us. Be sure of this, that if the state of feeling is not modified, if we don't obtain the legitimate satisfaction which is due Spain's past as well as her present we could be induced not to have the same interest in the League of Nations as heretofore.

"That would be our duty in deference to our own dignity, but we desire with all our heart a needed conciliation. In certain international congresses we have been considered in rather peculiar fashion. For example, at the Washington Conference didn't they lose a lot of time trying to limit our fleet to two cruisers?"

Policy of Hoodwinking.
The King admitted that disarmament conferences were well-intentioned and aimed at reassuring the nations participating in them; but he insisted that these reassurances ought to have serious bases.

"Formerly," Alfonso went on "we European powers were blamed, and not without reason, for the sinister consequences of the policy of secret treaties. Today we have substituted the policy of hoodwinking nations. That may have just as bad results."

"However, we must not despair of a nation's common sense any more than that of individuals. Let every nation, strong in its interior, work in its place and with sincerity for a good general understanding and Europe will recover its equilibrium and its prosperity."

Alfonso dismissed adverse criticism of the directorate in Spain as "opinions fabricated by certain agitators for foreign consumption."

Army Officers Said to Have Started Plot.

By the Associated Press.
BIARRITZ, France, June 28.—The latest information from Spain is that the plot against the Government was started and sustained almost exclusively by army officers.

This information contradicts the official note issued by the Spanish Government to the effect that the revolutionary movement was backed by syndicalists, Republicans and "intellectual anarchists," assisted by a few discontented military men.

Gen. Aguilera, former War Minister, another strong opponent of the Premier, is in military prison in Madrid.

The strictest prohibition obtains in Spain against mentioning either Weyler or Aguilera in newspapers or in telegrams.

The people of Madrid, although displaying much curiosity in consequence of the governmental note stating that the revolutionary movement consisted of groups of syndicalists, have been calm.

Weyler Leaves Mallorca Island for Spanish Mainland.

By the Associated Press.
PALMA, Island of Mallorca, June 28.—Gen. Weyler, one of the alleged leaders in the attempt to overthrow the Rivera Government, left here Saturday for the Spanish mainland. He had been here several days.

15 Arrested on Charges of Rioting.
By the Associated Press.
HUDSON, Wis., June 28.—Fifteen men, alleged to have taken part in a disturbance, near here June 14, have been arrested under the Wisconsin riot law. Those arrested include the Rev. Peter Rice, pastor of the Catholic Church, and William Burton, an officer in the National Guard. County Attorney Kirk said the disturbance occurred at a Ku Klux Klan meeting place about four miles northeast of Hudson, after a Klan lecturer is alleged to have made charges against the Catholic Church.

First!

The New York Herald Tribune is first in volume of national advertising lineage in the New York weekday morning field.

The Herald Tribune took first position in the weekday morning field for the month of March, 1926, and has held this position as well for April and May.

Thus the Herald Tribune has entered its FOURTH CYCLE of SUCCESS.

The FIRST CYCLE came with the successful consolidation of the New York Herald with the New York Tribune.

The SECOND CYCLE appeared when the circulation of the consolidated Herald Tribune continued to show a steady growth—a growth which continues today.

The THIRD CYCLE was evident in 1925, when the Herald Tribune gained 3,218,864 lines of advertising—over 1,000,000 lines more than the combined gain of the Times, American and World.

The dominant position of the Herald Tribune in the New York morning field, as proved by its leadership in volume of national advertising published on weekdays, makes the Herald Tribune the logical keystone for any campaign designed to reach the influential people of New York, the world's greatest market.

Hornsby's Men Helpless Before Pitcher Blake in Second Game—Cub Hurler Yields Only One Safety—Billy Southworth Hits Home-Run in Opening Game.

By J. Roy Stockton.

That colorful double-header that the Cardinals divided with the Chicago Cubs yesterday afternoon will go down in history with classic games of baseball played at St. Louis parks. It was an afternoon to rank with the Sunday when Rube Waddell hit a home-run that crashed against the flag pole in center field, and with the day when a pop-bottle jumped from the turf and hit Whitley Witt on the head and gave an imaginative fan a trip to a world series. The afternoon will be remembered with the day when Billy Evans was injured by a pop bottle thrown by a fan.

It was a full afternoon.

A new attendance record for baseball in St. Louis was established. 37,196 persons paying to see the games. The largest previous St. Louis crowd attended a spring series game in 1922, with a paid attendance of 29,600.

Grover Cleveland Alexander, recently obtained from the Cubs for a paltry $4,000, the waiver price, held his former teammates to four hits and beat them 3 to 2 in ten innings.

Sheriff Jack Blake held the Cardinals to one hit and won the second game, 3 to 0.

Fans threw pop bottles and seat cushions in the ninth inning of the second game, holding up play for 20 minutes.

Such a mob stormed the gates just before the game that a riot call had to be sent in to a police station.

Billy Southworth, recently obtained from the Giants in a trade that sent Heinie Mueller to New York, hit his first home run as a Cardinal and helped to win the first game.

Alexander Himself Again.

From a baseball standpoint the pitching performance of Alexander stood out as the high light of the afternoon. The veteran right-hander pitched a masterful game, and with Osborn, a young right-hander from Wichita Falls, also hurling effectively, the game was a thriller from start to finish, as good a game and as clean a game as ever was played.

Billy Southworth hit his home run in the fifth inning to score the first run of the game and in the seventh Charley Grimm, a native St. Louisian who plays first base for the Cubs, hit a home run with Stephenson on base, as a result of his single.

The lead that Grimm's hit gave the Cubs did not last long, as

Alexander Holds Cubs Helpless After Grimm Makes His Homer in Sixth Inning

That tied the score, but the home run by Grimm was the last hit the Cubs could manufacture off Alexander. The big right-hander put all he had into his pitches and his control was perfect. After Grimm's home run, 11 Cubs went to bat. And the 11 batters failed to reach base. Two of them struck out. Two hit flies to the outfield and seven of them were retired on grounders to the infield.

The Cardinal infield gave Alexander great support. Tommy Thevenow especially was a scurrying demon. Far be his left hand, would dash and then far to his right. Far into the grass-covered area of the infield and then back to the edge of the outfield grass. Deft were his hands, and true were his throws. Alexander shook hands with Tommy Thevenow after the game. Had it not been for Tommy it might have been different.

Joe McCarthy, manager of the Cubs, a bush league pilot who has accomplished wonders with the Chicago team, considered a sure thing strategy to check the Cardinals in the ninth, but the same strategy failed in the tenth.

Strategy Checks Cards.

In the ninth Thevenow drew a pass and advanced on Alexander's sacrifice. Blades was passed intentionally and after Douthett popped to Freigau, Hornsby also was given four bad balls, filling the bases. It proved sound strategy, for Bottomley grounded polity to Grimm and the rally was checked.

Southworth started the tenth inning with a pass and after Bell sacrificed Bill to second, Osborn immediately passed O'Farrell.

Thevenow sent a grounder down the third base line and Freigau had a chance to start a double play. But Thevenow's grounder was a hot smash, though straight to Freigau and Howard fumbled, just long enough to enable all the base runners to hurry to safety.

Alexander struck out, but Ray Blades hit a tantalizing slow grounder to Grimm and before Osborn could hurry to first to take the throw, Blades reached the bag and Southworth dashed over the plate with the winning run.

Blake Pitches Fine Game.

It was disgraceful that the pop bottle and cushion shower marred the afternoon. "Sheriff" Blake deserved to win. He held the Cardinals to one home hit, a single to center by Billy Southworth. He struck out 10 Cardinals and had a five-run lead, thanks partly to slovenly Cardinal fielding, before Southworth singled in the seventh for the only safety.

Stephenson singled, Grimm doubled and Cooney singled in the fourth to give the Cubs two runs. Douthett's fumble and Freigau's sacrifice fly added another. In the sixth Hornsby missed two grounders and Herman Bell missed a throw from Hornsby, the three errors giving the Cubs their final two runs.

Seven Cardinals reached base during the game, four on walks, two on errors and Southworth on his single.

Straw Hats Broken.

Many straw hats were broken by the seat cushions, sailed from the upper deck out to the heads of the fans in the lower sections, but although more than a thousand bottles were thrown and several hundred seat cushions, no serious casualties were reported.

While the demonstration was disgraceful, it may be said that it was a demonstration of disapproval rather than an attempt to injure anybody. The bottles in most cases were cast out on the field, an empty field at the time, most of them landing a few feet from the stands.

The umpires were meticulous about holding up the game because a few fans had left the stand, but after the bottle shower play was resumed with 20 or 30 bottle throwers and fans scurrying about the outfield.

Thevenow Drives Bell Home With Tying Run, in Opening Game

Lester Bell singled in the seventh inning, advanced on O'Farrell's infield out and scored when Tommy Thevenow looped a single to right. Bell is shown sliding over the plate, beating Heathcote's throw to Catcher Hartnett. The umpire is Ernie Quigley.

Bottle-Throwing a Demonstration of Disapproval, Not Attempt to Injure Anyone.

Two were out in the Chicago half of the ninth inning of the second game of the double-header at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon when a decision by Umpire Charley Moran drew a storm of protest and later a shower of pop bottles and seat cushions from the grandstand, bleachers and pavilion.

Adams, the third Chicago batter, popped to Hornsby and the Cubs were running out to take their positions in the field and the Cardinals were rushing in for their final turn at bat, when Umpire Moran called for attention and informed the players that Catcher Warlick had interfered with Adams' bat as he popped out.

Adams, therefore, was entitled to go to first base.

There was a roar of disapproval from the stands. The bleachers fans did not know what it was all about and they led in the jeering and booing.

Heathcote went to bat and the demonstration might have petered out had the game been hurried along. But Umpire Quigley, a demon for detail and strict observance of rules, noticed that a few fans had stepped from the extreme left field corner of the grandstand and were encroaching on the field, though outside the foul line.

Quigley Halted Game.

Quigley stopped play till the fans could be ordered from the field. A fresh chorus of boos, hisses and cat calls arose and some thoughtless fan in the upper deck of the grandstand and the third base line, hurled a seat cushion on the field.

Immediately there was a shower of seat cushions and then the bottles started to rain from grandstand, bleacher and pavilion. In five minutes the field was littered with bottles and glass, some of the bottles going in as far as the base lines.

There were a few policemen in the park, but they were helpless and sat tight. There was no way to stop the rain of bottles and the players gathered in the infield, waiting until the supply of ammunition would be exhausted.

Finally Groundkeeper Bill Stockadek and a force of men cleared the field sufficiently to permit the game to be finished, though during the final half inning the outfielders kept a weather eye on the stands.

Cardinals Lose Half a Game
In Drive to Overtake Reds

BREAKING even with the Cubs, the Cardinals lost a half game in their drive toward first place. They are now two and a half games behind the Cincinnati Reds, who handed the world's champion Pirates a 16-0 drubbing.

Pittsburgh dropped a game farther behind the Reds and half a game farther below the Cards, who now are a full game ahead of the champions.

President Sam Bronson of the Cardinals said he would take steps to eliminate the question about the entrances at future games. He said he would arrange to have special entrances for reserved seat holders, transforming an exit gate if necessary to enable the reserved seat holders to have an entrance away from the general admission crowd.

The reserved seat holders arrived late and the congestion in Dodder street became so serious that a riot call was sent to the police, asking for a patrol wagon of officers to handle the crowd.

More than 6000 seats were reserved and most of the purchasers of these seats arrived in the last half hour before the game.

In addition to the 37,196 persons who paid to see the game, nearly 1000 pass holders and gate crashers attended. There was much fence-climbing and hundreds of bleacher fans climbed over the railing into the grandstand shortly before the first game started.

The fans took the crush good-naturedly. They were fortunate that it was a comparatively cool day. Had it been a scorching day, the demonstration would have been great.

Buttons were broken off coats in the jam around the entrance gates and there were many inquiries at the office for pieces of fur, torn off in the rush for the turnstiles.

If St. Louis is going to have many more crowds like that of the overflow crowd, instead of going on the field, filled the aisles in back of the grand stand and packed the turnstiles.

Phil Ball, owner of the Browns, saw his new stands filled for the first time. He congratulated Sam Bronson on the showing the Cards are making and said it would be a fine thing for baseball if they could win the pennant.

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 23.—Ralph Powell and Davis Davis of Omaha yesterday annexed the men's doubles championship of the Missouri State tennis tournament by defeating Junior Coen of Kansas City and James Quick of Dallas, Tex., in a grueling combat, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

The Omaha pair, strangely enough, were matched against junior players in the men's finals and the youngsters gave them a battle that was of the most spectacular sort. It was an uphill pull for the youthful stars as they were playing against a doubles team that has worked together for years.

It was Coen and Quick's first tournament in which they played the doubles together.

Having swept through a field of stiff competition to the finals of the men's singles, Joe Smith, St. Louis ranking No. 25 in the National boys' singles, was defeated in straight sets by Jimmy Quick, the St. Louisian being able to win only three games, the score being 6-0, 6-2, 6-1.

Smith was off his game and his driving and chop shots were wild. His service was only fair, while Quick displayed the large assortment of strokes that he has used throughout the tournament.

It was the second defeat of the tournament for Smith at the hands of Quick, the Mount City youth losing to the lad from the Lone Star State in the junior singles, 6-0, 6-2, 6-1.

After a Series of Delays Suzanne Notifies Officials She Cannot Continue—Mrs. Ryan Becomes a Single.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 23.—There were three high lights in the Wimbledon tennis tournament today. There was the story of Howard Kinsey, the Californian, who advanced to the final of the men's singles; the elimination of Miss Elizabeth Ryan, California, in the women's singles; and the withdrawal of Miss Suzanne Lenglen from the tournament.

Kinsey became a semifinalist when he defeated the South African star, P. D. B. Spence, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

Kinsey's cut shots made Spence continually overhit during first two sets. Spence showed flashes of form in the third set, but Kinsey displayed clever footwork and court generalship to win fourth set and match.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan, American, was eliminated by Mrs. Kitty Kane Godfree, England's champion. Mrs. Godfree won, 1-6, 6-0, 6-0. The elimination of Miss Ryan leaves Mrs. Moira Mallory as lone United States representative.

Suzanne Withdraws.

Miss Lenglen, whose appearance from day to day has kept the crowds guessing for the last definitely withdrawn from the tournament for the singles championship, which she has six times won.

There were no dramatics to retirement as Miss Lenglen disappeared at the stadium, and news was announced to the assembled about the center before the spectators had time to grow impatient.

The following statement made by her secretary, Maj. Larcombe:

"I have just spoken to Lenglen over the telephone and she tells me that, although she is in the hospital, she is not suffering from any serious illness, and she has decided to retire from the singles championship."

She also asked me to inform the public that she is not able to play, but that she had done her best to carry out the opening set on her own terms to Mrs. Godfree, but then a campaign of hard slicing and chopping which she carried through six successive games to take the set 6-1.

Mrs. Godfree won her own set on the opening of the second set, but Miss Ryan then came to the fore. The third set was fought, bagged by several times, Miss Ryan captured it after a spectacular exchange of volleys. Mrs. Godfree then captured the fourth game.

After the fourth game, Mrs. Ryan, despite her recent indisposition, exhibited a fine variety of strokes, backed by judgment, but Mrs. Godfree improved and took the sixth and seventh games. Ryan, fighting desperately, the eighth on her own service save the set, and then Lenglen to the fifth game. Godfree captured the tenth, winning the set 6-4.

The third set opened on Godfree's service, which she all over the court at the playing brilliantly and seemed to be the count of the game. Miss Ryan seemed unable to about. Mrs. Godfree took games in a row when Miss went to pieces and the Englishwoman won the match.

Cramer let down Kain with three hits and Laclede batters won a 20-hit rampage to win, 16 to 3, Cramer himself contributing a home run.

Schenberg's Eighth Straight.
An upset was recorded in the independent when the Meletios advanced to third place by beating the leading Glascos. Gehner's pitching was the deciding factor. He allowed the losers only 2 hits.

FOREIGN LIENS ARE FEATURE OF MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 28.—Rallies in several foreign obligations featured today's irregular bond market, in which opportunities for profit were limited by tight money conditions. Domestic issues traded quietly with no important change in prices, while some foreign issues advanced with aggressive bidding for Hungarian Government 7s, which carried three bonds up to 100. The market also received reports of new financing for the Argentine Republic, which had been in the air for some time, and a rumor of a new loan for Greece, reaching a new top at 83 1/2. Poland's 5s moved up 2 points to 100 1/2.

Growing interest in the reported sale of the Republic of Cuba for $100 million and the forward movement in its 6s, which had been down to 95, were also noted. The market for the new 10-year Standard 2s Pillbury Flour 8s took place at 100 1/2, while the new 10-year Standard 2s moderately higher in contrast to the new 10-year National 2s, which was down 1/2 point to 99 1/2. Marine 6s and Detroit Edison 6s were also noted.

Rail issues were sluggish, with New York Central 4s down 1/2 point to 99 1/2 and Southern about a point.

GOSPEL CENTER REVIVAL BEGUN

Evangelist Howard Williams stresses fundamentalist doctrine. Howard S. Williams, Mississippi evangelist, beginning yesterday afternoon his second St. Louis campaign at the Gospel Center, 4609 Washington boulevard, stressed fundamentalist teachings. He made it clear that he was not identified in his evangelistic capacity with any denomination and said converts would be urged to join the churches of their preference. The Gospel Center is maintained by a group of laymen for the spreading of nondenominational fundamentalist teachings. The building has a roof garden auditorium where the meetings will be held when the weather is not unfavorable. Meetings are to be held each evening except Monday and at 4 o'clock each Sunday afternoon. Williams is assisted by P. Schaffer Rowland of Macon, Ga., who leads the singing.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE.

LIND was to have met Mark at Sandos tonight. She knew that he would be there regardless of the rain. Going to her room, she put on her heavy breeches and her short jacket, and set out down the trail. The sky and the earth were indistinguishable, blended like a dark water. The timber poured away into the night, a black liquid mass. Dimly Lind made out the fence posts along the road. Once she saw a gray shape dart across the trail ahead of her. It was perhaps a furtive coyote seeking shelter, and was harmless, but Lind started to run after she had seen the thing.

The Sandos were separating the milk in the kitchen when she arrived there. She threw the door open without knocking, and stood in the doorway laughing at her own fright.

Sven was uneasy. He wanted to get Lind out at once where he could talk to her. He saddled two horses and they rode down the trail together toward Klovacs.

"She's been let out to work now, on the field," Lind told him. "But you had better not try to see her, because he is watching her all the time. Why don't you both wait until after the harvest, when he will have forgotten about the ax, and then tell him right out that you want to be married? He can surely have nothing against that, can he?"

Lind, like the others, had fallen into the habit of referring to Caleb as "he."

"Yeh—Sven laughed bitterly. "He's as soon let me marry Judith as out of his nose. He just wants to keep her there to work. He'd shoot me if I came near the place. But there's something else I want to tell you. He's been talking at Yellow Post—about you and Mark Jordan."

"Talking—how?"

"Oh—bragging—about how he could put a stop to all that, quick enough. I heard him telling John-Johnson and one of the Icelanders. He likes to show how he's got a hand on everybody. He didn't say it in just so many words, but he sort of hinted that he could finish Mark Jordan quick enough. Like he had had something on him. Sneering about him. I stepped up and says, 'You better be careful what you're saying about Jordan, Caleb Gare.' He looks at me and sort of smiles, and says, 'Who're you to be talking to me, eh? You take care of yourself, and don't step in where you're not wanted. Then he laughs and goes out of the store. I would 'a' swung on him if he wasn't so old. But I knew what he meant—about me. I don't know what he meant about Mark, though. You be careful of him, Miss Archer. He'll go sneaking around the house and way of hurling you and Mark if he gets any reason to think he ought. Perhaps he thinks right now you're tryin' to get Judith away."

Lind was silent for a while.

"Perhaps he will try to do some damage to Mark, but he can't reach him. Mark doesn't depend on this life for his living, you know, Sven, so you needn't worry. There isn't a thing he could do to him, and surely not to me, other than have me put out of the school, and that wouldn't matter a great deal."

"Well, you better tell Mark to look out, anyway."

"Oh, I will, Sven. Is there anything you want me to tell Jude?"

"You might just give her this—Sven reached into his breast pocket and took out an envelope, 'I been carryin' it round with me for a while. Perhaps she'll want it.'"

Lind smiled in the darkness at Sven's brusque attitude.

Mark rode up to them then and Sven turned back.

"It's so dark I can hardly see your face, Lind," Mark said, dismounting. "I want to be sure it's you."

He put his arms about her and she leaned down and kissed him.

"Now, are you sure?" she whispered.

"They rode toward the Gare's to take their favorite wood trail north. Just before they came to the Gare's, Lind thought she saw a shadow cross the road toward the place where the wood trail branched off from it. It was too large to be a coyote."

"Mark," she said, moving closer to him, "I'm nervous tonight, I guess. I'm sure I saw something cross the road."

Mark peered into the darkness. "I can't see anything. Don't be nervous, dear. That's not like you. It's a wonderful night. There's nothing out but what ought to be here."

They turned their horses into the wood trail and heard the soughing of the rain through the branches that crossed overhead. It was so dark that they could not see the trees against the sky, but had only a mysterious knowledge of their presence. Lind kept close to Mark.

"Do you know that Caleb Gare has you blacklisted, for a reason?" she asked softly. "Sven said he had heard him talking about you in Yellow Post."

"About me?" Mark broke out. "What on earth—perhaps it's because I told him where to get off in regard to the price he tried to make Anton take for the hay."

"Perhaps that was it—but I hope he doesn't do anything to upset poor Anton."

"I'll not let him. By the way, Anton has sent in his report to the government. Inspectors will be out soon, I suppose. Poor devil, he certainly deserves that homestead."

They had come to the end of the wood road, where it opened upon the clearing. Here there was no shelter whatever from the rain, and Lind turned back. When they rode again into the main trail she looked about to see whether there was any sign of the shape she had seen move through the dark. As she thought of it, it had appeared broad and bent over at the shoulders, like a bear. She glanced about without saying anything to Mark. But she saw nothing except the dense black blur that shut in the garden. There was no light visible in the farm yard at the Gare's, and they could not see the house where they passed to say good night to each other on the road. Lind let Mark take the pony back to Sandos.

When Lind turned in at the gate after leaving Mark, she started at a sound that seemed to come out of the rain. It was like fir branches brushing together. The darkness was too closely knit for her to see anything except the sprawling bulk of the outhouses. The lantern was lit in the kitchen, and she ran toward the house.

Judith was inside washing the pails of the separator when she entered. She spoke to her quietly.

"Jude, don't say anything to the others, because I may be mistaken, but I thought I heard something in the hedge near the road. Is everybody in?"

"They've all gone to bed, except him and mother," Judith replied. Lind saw Amelia moving about in the other room. "I'll go take Pete out and have a look around when I'm through with this," Jude added.

Lind went upstairs and took off her wet coat. She stood for a moment in the dark, looking out of the window. As it was still darker outside, she could make out a shadowy, top-heavy figure coming from the direction of the front gate. It came within the light from the kitchen window, and she saw that it was Caleb Gare. At first she wanted to laugh from sheer relief. Then an unaccountable feeling of dread came over her. "He must have been spying upon them, from within the hedge. It was he who had hurried across the road when they had turned into the wood trail. What was his motive in watching them?"

Judith came upstairs and lit the lamp on the other side of the curtain.

"Jude," Lind whispered. "Judith came around from behind the curtain. 'What's real?' she asked. 'Did you go out and look?'"

"Yes—there wasn't anything," said Jude, and then after a moment. "Thanks for the—the thing you gave me, but I can't wear it. Not yet, anyway."

Lind gave her the letter from Sven. Jude leaned toward the light that came through the curtain, and read the letter. She could not go back to her own bed to read it, because Ellen was there. When she had gone, Lind was trying to think clearly. But she came back always to the baffling conviction that Caleb was trying to bring some evil upon Mark and herself.

She went to sleep finally from the monotony of the rain upon the roof of the log house.

It rained steadily for two days. Ellen, Judith and Charlie took care of the animals, milked and churned, and prepared the cream and butter for shipment. Skull Erickson came twice a week to take their produce to the Sliding, in rain or shine, and Caleb would learn of it were they not ready for him. Martin still lay on the couch, asking no attention, no sympathy. Amelia began knitting heavy woolen stockings for the girls in preparation for the winter. And Caleb puttered about all day between the house and the barn and the tool shed, unlocking drawers and reading old, yellowed letters, examining bottles of medicine and matching the parts of broken tools and implements, deeply concerned with things of which no one knew the significance.

INSIDE SOCIETY—And Out

Park Benjamin and his present wife, who has lately gone into vaudeville as a singer.

CHAPTER I.

WHY did I, who was born into New York Society, resign from its purple ranks? Well, that's a long story, but the determining factors in my resignation were boredom, ironic amusement and distaste. For years I strove to get out of society, strove in vain. Have I at last succeeded? Time, perhaps, will show. But it has been a struggle.

Let me give you a personal example of what I mean. If I dine alone with my wife in any one of the big European hotels, news comes back, somehow, to my chauffeur and my broker in New York that "there's something the matter with the Park Benjamins. They had to dine alone."

As a consequence, the topic of polite conversation in our modern society for weeks will be the Park Benjamins, and my chauffeur may wonder which will be the easier to mulct when we return, my wife or I. The average society chauffeur's salary is $50 a week, if he lives at home. His average income is about four times that sum. There is so much going on, nowadays, between breakfast in the boudoir and next morning's first hint of sunshine on the night club crowd which somebody must know about that the chauffeur is kept busy collecting his "fees."

So it is for the woman's sake that her society husband must see to it that they don't have to dine alone, no matter how much they may like each other's company. They are supposed to be at a party, or giving a party, or, if they prefer to be alone, not with each other. Almost any young society matron would handsomely "feed" her chauffeur to keep from his brothers the fact that she "had" to dine with her husband.

As for us men, the butlers have their eyes on us. They know whether we prefer brunettes or blondes, because they usually conduct the arrangements by which we provide our private parties against a studio or roadhouse background, with a mixture of rented guests, obtained from agencies or club managers at the fixed marriage price this season of $25 for blondes and $20 for brunettes!

Accordingly, the butler may or may not, and least of all to the size of his "fees," inform our wives or our fiancées or our financial sources when the time comes for the inevitable Paris divorce which should be watched, blondes or brunettes.

The necessity, nowadays, of engaging unknown young women to pose as guests at our functions is perhaps the most pathetic secret of our modern society. And it provides the keynote of the jazz symphony to the strains of which our time, old society has descended. May I here describe the custom in detail, with an exclusive party in mind, which was attended last year by Grand Duke Boris of Russia, many celebrities of the Park Avenue set and least notable, including a Cabinet member?

THIS gathering followed an afternoon tea in one of the expensive studios in the West Fifties. Nearby lives Mme. Marguerite d'Alvarez, of the Metropolitan Opera Co., Emil Puchner, the famous sculptor, honored by Queen Victoria; Howard Chandler Christy, the artist, and the Countess of Limerick.

The hostess had determined upon her customary mid-season tea. In my younger days afternoon tea was the most enjoyable of functions for debutantes and their mothers, and for the unattached and unemployed young men. There was bridge, chat about the latest books and the newest timbers, and music. But nowadays cocktail parties have precedence, with the best-known bootlegger and the newest divorcee and the swiftest debutante honored!

WHO PARK BENJAMIN IS

PARK BENJAMIN, who is 47 years old, is a son of Park Benjamin, patent lawyer, author and inventor, by his first wife. He is a half-brother of Dorothy Caruso Ingram, widow of the famous tenor. Prior to Dorothy's marriage the Benjamin children figured in the papers only in connection with social affairs. This was especially the case in the early married life of Park Benjamin Jr. and his first wife, Katherine Doremus Benjamin, daughter of Dr. Charles Doremus, a chemist. They were married June 9, 1909, and had two children.

She won a divorce decree and custody of the children in May, 1923, and when the interlocutory decree became final, six months later, Benjamin married again, his second wife having been born Gladys Lamphere at Riverside, Cal. She was a singer and May 3 of this year made her debut in vaudeville at the New York Hippodrome.

Ever since the marriage of his half-sister to Caruso, the Benjamin family have figured largely in the newspapers, but not so much in the society columns. First came Miss Benjamin's father's outspoken objection to her marriage to the tenor. Then followed his adoption of Anna Bolch, who had been Dorothy's governess. Mr. Benjamin Sr. was 70 at this time and he gave Miss Bolch's age as "over 21." When he died, his will not only cut off his five children with $1 each, but scored them for unfilial conduct toward him. At that time Park Benjamin Jr. said that the split in the Benjamin family had come about over Miss Bolch, rather than over Dorothy's marriage. The children contested the will, but a settlement, the terms of which were never published, was reached out of court. It was reported that Park Benjamin got $20,000. After his divorce his name was dropped from the Social Register, though his first wife remained in.

This special hostess felt that she must make good along the prescribed lines. She didn't want to lose prestige, for she had an imposing guest list. Among those invited were the Duchess of Richelieu, Lady Peel, Mrs. Cosmo Hamilton, James J. Davis, a Cabinet secretary, Lord Lambert, Mrs. J. Theus Munda and others bearing names "mighty in our present-day society."

The experienced hostess was reassured. Boris was then the chief social lion in New York. He stuck pretty closely to his own set and was amused at the efforts to lure him hither and thither. He laughed good-naturedly when an emissary came to him with the frank plea that he permit himself to be announced as a prospective guest. It was suggested that a private bar could be fitted out for him, where his favorite brandy and soda would be on tap.

"But who'll be there to amuse me?" Boris asked. "Oh, countesses," was the reply. "A Vanderbilt, a Gould by marriage, one of the Whitneys, Mrs. Garing."

AT THIS point the Grand Duke interrupted. "Garing?" he mused. "Somehow that name reminds me of beef. Before our troubles at home—the bolsheviks, you know—I was ordered by the Czar to buy a lot of meat for the army. The name Garing comes back to me. Who, please, is Mrs. Garing?"

"Mrs. Garing of Long Island. She responded. 'I'll come, but Jack must come, too.'"

The party was a huge success. Fanny looked like a debutante, wearing some of the Romanoff jewels she had purchased in Paris. The Grand Duke was charmed. Fanny dropped him a curtsy and whispered: "Can you get me a drink of the real stuff around this threesome place?" The Duke, the stage star and her handsome husband were promptly isolated in the

Farmer Brown's Boy Loses a Pigeon

The right to live belongs to all. The strong, the weak, the great, the small.

—Old Mother Nature.

So, Farmer Brown's Boy pigeons could be seen flying about over the farm every day.

It is true that Old Mother Nature has given each the right to live, but it is also her law that each must protect that right. In other words, each one must continually use his wits and be smart enough to prevent any one else from taking away that right. This is Mother Nature's way of making sure that only the most fit shall live.

Farmer Brown's Boy had pigeons as well as chickens. Of course those pigeons could fly at will. Pigeons are not kept in yards as are chickens. So Farmer Brown's Boy's pigeons could be seen flying about over the farm every day. They delighted to bill and coo on the roof of the barn. Some of them were so tame that they would come down and sit on Farmer Brown's Boy's hand while he fed them. He was very fond of those pigeons.

Some of those pigeons were very swift flyers and Farmer Brown's Boy took great pride in them. He delighted in watching them. He was doing this one morning. The pigeons were some little distance away in the cornfield. Suddenly they rose as if in fright and headed for home. At first Farmer Brown's Boy couldn't think what it was. Then he saw some distance back of them a dark form coming through the air with tremendous speed. He knew it for a hawk, but it was the fastest flying hawk he had ever seen. Those pigeons were coming fast, but the hawk behind them was coming faster.

Farmer Brown's Boy yelled and yaved his arms in the hope of frightening away that hawk. But that hawk didn't frighten. Straight on it came and struck one of those pigeons in midair only a few feet from where Farmer Brown's Boy was standing. Without stopping the hawk swept on, carrying the pigeon with it. Farmer Brown's Boy watched it out of sight. It had flown straight toward the Big Mountain and at the rate it was going it had soon disappeared.

"Phew!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy, "that's the boldest hawk I ever saw, and how it can fly. I hope he doesn't come back again. I thought my pigeons could fly, but they haven't any chance against that fellow. He picked that pigeon out of the air as if it were sitting still instead of flying as hard as it could. If he comes often I see where I shall have to keep my pigeons snug up."

It became a typical society with the blondes and brunettes background. Let me make that remark. Except on formal occasions, the real thing—that is, daughters of known families—is seldom much too wild and dangerous in parties where they are served.

I know it sounds crazy, but it's true. Many girls in "best families" drink too much excessively and are not with their freedom. I can't behave sensibly when I had a few. AND-PAINTED "Hankies" on hats are the latest rage. The wide-brimmed felt hats are showing crowns draped in the gayest silk kerchiefs, patterned in geometric or facial designs. These latter seem the more popular, and all types of feminine beauty are thus represented.

Scarves serve as shawls for summer evening wear, when, though only a foot wide at the throat, they are greatly widened by the deeply pleated insets of contrasting color. Those pleated sections are applied at either end, so that when the scarf is thrown back the shoulders and arms are quite covered.

Shirred and sheer are the smartest French summer coats that are developed of transparent, silk crepe or chiffon. These wraps add smartness and chic without any great degree of warmth. The well-gowned Parisian usually insists upon wearing a coat even in the warmest weather, but she cleverly adapts her fabric to the rise of the mercury.

Short and sleeveless are the loose lace coats that are being worn over solid color, plain, chiffon frocks. Being very full in back, they ripple in capelike effect and reach just about to the waist.

Showing your hand is never done by a good card player—not the slightest hint is given by the facial expression. Away from the card table hands are frankly displayed in a most transparent manner, for two-button net gloves are expected to become quite the vogue for mid-summer wear. In beige, light gray, black or white, they form a dainty accessory to the warm weather costume.

Distinctly different is the softly spun wool jersey, which is smartly trimmed in self color designs. This new fabric expresses the last word in sports wear, for it varies the monotony of the jersey mode and develops the jauntiest little two-piece frocks.

RUB a baking pan with lard or vegetable oil. In it place for each person, a lamb chop dusted with salt and pepper, a small sausage pricked, two or three peeled mushroom caps with a small slice of bacon over them, a half of a banana, peeled and cut lengthwise and dusted with a little sugar, and bake about 20 minutes in a hot oven, 375 degrees F. Arrange individually or on a platter, and garnish with parsley.

Nightly—Before Bed
follow this simple rule
in skin care
By NORMA TALMADGE

Foremost beauty experts throughout the world urge it as the most effective way to gain natural skin cleanness... what to do, and why

WHAT you do at night—just before bed—for your skin is an all-important step in gaining the natural skin cleanness which all the world seeks today.

Leading skin experts urge the following rule. Urge that it be followed last thing every night, also every day. It has brought the reward of a naturally clear complexion to more women than any other method known.

Try it for one week. Note the improvement in the color and softness of your skin that follows regular cleansing with the gentle olive and palm lather of Palmolive, in this way:

THE RULE—MAKE IT YOURS STARTING TODAY

Wash your face gently with Palmolive Soap, massaging it softly into the skin. Rinse thoroughly, first with warm water, then with cold. If your skin is inclined to be dry, apply a touch of good cold cream—that is all.

Do this regularly, and particularly in the evening. Use powder and rouge if you wish. But never leave them on overnight. They clog the pores, often enlarge them. Blackheads and disfigurements often follow. They must be washed away. Follow these rules day in and day

Summer Precautions

If you are closing up the house for summer be sure you have guarded overfurnished furniture, blankets, hangings and clothing against moths.

Furniture, pictures, fixtures and bedding should be protected against dust. Slip covers, netting and newspapers will effectually do this.

Guard against fires by removing from the house all oil saturated cloths, mops and dusters and put matches into a tin receptacle.

Avoid damage by dampness, as far as possible, by leaving all room and closet doors ajar. Also leave cupboard and refrigerator doors open. Move pianos, bookcases and mirrors away from wall.

Shut off the water and gas to guard against leaks.

If the house is to be closed for several months it is advisable to request the electric light company to disconnect the current. This service is speedily restored if the company is notified in due time.

Let Fate Wreak Vengeance
By Lucy Lowell

A LONG time ago there was a newspaper woman who had the bad judgment to oppose certain measures that were introduced by a group of politicians. And because she had the columns of a big newspaper and her own fixed determination, as weapon, she succeeded in blocking their scheme.

But they never forgave her. The five of them conspired to crush her, and they almost did it.

Being young and unafraid, the woman made up her mind to "get even." But when she confided this fact to a wise old friend of hers, this is what he said:

"Leave vengeance to fate. The punishment fate sends is more certain and more devastating than any you might invent. I have learned through many experiences that if I let my enemies alone, they will eventually bring upon themselves the punishment they deserve. Don't use up your energy and thought

The man on the sandbox says he persisted until he finally found out why they put leather patches in football breeches and now he wants to know why they don't paint flagpoles until after they have been erected.

As a means of communication flowers will never successfully compete with the 2-cent stamp owing to the difference in cost.

Furthermore, in the bright lexicon of flowers there is no postage stamp code so popular with long-distance wooers.

REED RAKES 'LOAN' OF BAIRD TO BE U. S. DRY CHIEF IN PITTSBURG REGION

Appointment of Judge Gary's Man "As Illegal a Proposition" as Has Come to Senator's Notice

PEPPER DENIES CAUSING TRANSFER

Charge Made That Huge G. O. P. "Slush" Fund Has Been Raised in North Dakota to Defeat Nye.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—A very denunciation of the employment of Frederick C. Baird as Federal Prohibition Administrator for Pennsylvania while he was drawing a salary from the Bessemer & Lake Erie Railroad, which is owned by the United States Steel Corporation, marked today's session of the Reed campaign fund investigating committee of the Senate.

Senator Reed of Missouri, chairman of the committee, brought Baird into the discussion. Maj. William B. Wright, in charge of the administration of the $131,000 W. C. T. U. dry law enforcement fund, had just testified that he and his "under cover" agents—Mr. X, Mr. Y, Mr. Z and Mr. Zero—had been unable to check the huge illicit liquor traffic in Pennsylvania because of failure of the Government to co-operate.

Senator Reed said that Baird, traffic manager of the Bessemer & Lake Erie, who was "lent" to the prohibition unit by the Steel Corporation, had resigned from the unit a short time ago and went back to his railroad work.

The reference was to Baird, traffic manager of the Bessemer & Lake Erie, who was "lent" to the prohibition unit by the Steel Corporation. He resigned from the unit a short time ago and went back to his railroad work.

Wright, a voluble witness throughout his examination, started to argue the point.

"George Washington," he began, "gave his services and money to the Government." He could see no difference in principle, he said, between Baird's services and Washington's.

"Wide Gulf" of Difference. "But George Washington," cut in Reed, "was working for the Ku Klux Klan or the Antislavery League or any other private organization. He was working for the people."

Wright again became argumentative, but Reed cut him off impatiently.

"Mr. Wright," he said, "I don't care to argue the question. There is a wide gulf and a deep sea between you and your services and George Washington and his services."

"The principle is the same," continued Wright, Reed brusquely turned to another subject.

The audience broke into frequent giggles as Reed led the witness to tell of the record of the mysterious Mr. X, Mr. Y and Mr. Z and Mr. Zero before they were hired to help spend the W. C. T. U. funds in Pennsylvania. It took some time for the witness and Reed to get the pseudonyms properly set out against the real names of the four sleuths.

They did it by means of passing back and forth a slip of paper on which the witness had written the names. Reed read yesterday's testimony to Wright, so that he might be sure of the identification in each case.

Bares Record of Secret Sleuths. Wright previously had said that he hoped the committee would not destroy the usefulness of his secret agents by making their names public. He appealed particularly on behalf of Mr. X, who is still with him.

Reed brought out that two of the agents—two of those whose names were given—were employed in the W. C. T. U. crusade after they had been dropped from the Federal enforcement service; that Mr. X had resigned from it because the Government was about to transfer him to Porto Rico and that Mr. Z had once faced a charge based on the discovery of liquor in his garage.

The first man to come under scrutiny was J. A. Tatro. It appeared that Tatro was dropped
